Ford, UAW Concentrate On Plant-Level Disputes

Negotiators Push Efforts To End Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers Union agreed Wednesday to give priority to settling disputes at the plant level in an effort to end the day-old strike of 120,000 production workers at the auto firm.

Labor contract negotiators put off discussions of a national contract on working conditions until 2 p.m. Friday. In the meantime, they will try to clear the way for a final settlement by effecting settlements at the plants.

The decision was made in two half-hour sessions Wednesday.

The UAW shut down the entire Ford system Tuesday after accepting a money package described as better than the one it obtained from General Motors last month.

Each Side Accuses Other

UAW President Walter P. Reuther blamed the company for the strike. He said Ford negotiators waited until shortly before the 10 a.m. strike deadline to discuss noneconomic issues.

At the resumption of negotiations, Malcolm L. Denise, Ford's vice president for labor relations disputed this. He said most of the time was spent on the union's last-minute demands that Ford improve on the GM settlement.

"We didn't get all the frosting on the GM cake until 7:30 a.m. yesterday," Denise said. The frosting involved improvements in layoff pay benefits, pensions and insurance. Denise said they meant labor cost increases but he couldn't say how much.

No Quick Agreement Seen

Neither Denise nor Reuther gave any indication that a quick settlement on noneconomic issues could be expected.

Reuther said he was suggesting to the company that they speed up bargaining at the local level and put together a complete package on working conditions. He said, "We will work out a practical mechanism to do that."

Denise said, "We're going to have to clean up everything. We can't do it in two pieces. We have been working on the local stuff. The best description is that we will continue to work on it."

JFK, Gromyko To Air Berlin Issue Friday

White House Talks May Determine If Big 4 Get Together

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko will meet Friday for a conference which may well determine whether the Big Four get together later this year to try to solve the Berlin problem.

A White House announcement confirmed speculation that Gromyko will call on Kennedy Friday. The meeting is schdeuled to start at 5 p.m.

State Department experts stressed that nothing dramatic should be expected from the Kennedy-Gromyko meeting.

Informal Talk Likely

The President, these officials said, will restate the arguments Secretary of State Dean Rusk has already outlined in talks with the Russians in New York. There is hope that Gromyko will be convinced of Western firmness on what can and what can not be negotiated at an eventual four-power conference.

The Friday conference, therefore, will likely be an informal talk in which both sides spell out their respective positions. Officials said, however, the possibility that Gromyko might have received new instructions from Moscow can not be excluded. But they see the chances of a shift in the Soviet position prior to the forthcoming Communist party congress as almost nil.

The State Department said there are no plans for separate conferences between Rusk and Gromyko.

Rusk, Menshikov To Sit In

Rusk, of course, will be at Kennedy's side when Gromyko visits the White House. The Russian is expected to be accompanied by his ambassador, Mikhail Menshikov.

In a related move it was announced that Llewellyn E. Thompson, the U.S. envoy to Moscow, will return to Washington for consultations. But he is not due here in time to sit in on the conference with Gromyko.

Thompson, officials said, plans to go back to Moscow in time to be there when the Communist party congress opens Oct. 17.

Gromyko is expected to return to New York immediately after he meets with Kennedy. He has announced he plans to leave for Moscow Sunday night.

Shots Traded As Refugees Are Fired On

One Falls To Death, Other Seized; Red Policeman Wounded

BERLIN (AP)—West and East German police engaged at dusk Wednesday in a gunfight over the Iron Curtain border during a Communist police pursuit of two East German refugees over the rooftops, eyewitnesses reported.

One refugee's flight to the West ended in a fall to his death as he shouted "freedom."

The other was captured by the Communists.

A Red policeman apparently was wounded.

The exchange of fire occurred as the Communists chased the refugees over houses in Bernauerstrasse—the scene of many dramatic escapes to the West.

West Berlin police then drew pistols and fired at the roof in an attempt to hold back the Red pursuers, the eyewitnesses said.

One Communist policeman apparently was hit in the thigh and was dragged away by his comrades, several witnesses said.

200 Witness Shooting

It could turn out to be the most serious shooting incident on the sector border since the Communists began erecting their barricade Aug. 13.

About 200 West Berliners witnessed the shooting on the Bernauerstrasse. This is the street where East Berliners have been jumping from residences in Communist territory to sidewalks in the West.

West Berlin police confirmed that they opened fire. They said shots fired by the Communist police at the refugees hit the sidewalk near West Berlin police and firemen.

Therefore, a police spokesman said, the West Berlin police considered they had been fired at and were entitled to return the fire in defense.

He said five West Berlin policemen fired 24 aimed shots, one of which hit a Communist policeman.

Police said the refugee, about 22, was killed instantly by his fall.

Ammo For Red Propaganda

The incident seemed certain to heat up Communist propaganda attacks on the Western allies' rights in West Berlin. Although the shooting was done by West Berliners, the ultimate authority in West Berlin lies with the occupying powers — the United States, Britain and France.

Shortly before the shooting incident, Gen. Lucius Clay, President Kennedy's personal representative in West Berlin, said the U.S. government is determined to defend West Berlin.

"In my many years of experience with the Berlin problem, I have never known our government to be as determined as it is now to defend the freedom of Berlin," Clay told visiting newsmen from the United States.

Clay was U.S. military governor of Germany during the Soviets' 1948-49 blockade of West Berlin and he presided over the mighty Allied airlift.

U.N. Faces Disaster If 'Bullies' Get Way, Chiang Envoy Says

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Nationalist China warned Wednesday the United Nations faces disaster if international bullies have their way on adding members "clearly disqualified" by provisions of the U. N. Charter.

"Appeasement is very much in the air," Shen Chang-huan, Nationalist foreign minister, told the 100-nation assembly, which will come to grips soon on the issue of seating Communist China.

As usual, the entire Soviet bloc snubbed Nationalist China and left the assembly hall when Shen spoke.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko showed up to listen to the next speaker, Romanian Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu, who called for admission of Communist China and the ousting of the Chinese Nationalists.

Shen declared the United Nations "is now in danger of being perverted to serve the interests of powerful warmakers and international bullies, who have no respect for the principles and purposes enshrined in the Charter."

"If they are allowed to have their way," he added, then the era of collective aggression, not of collective security, is upon us.

He told neutral nations who are supporting seating of Red China that they are being used by the Communists.

He said it was clear neutralism was "anathema to the Communists," and they have no more love for a third force in international life than they have for capitalism.

Shen said he saw nothing wrong in a newly independent nation staying clear of power blocs, but added that neutralism "does not mean the repudiation of moral judgment on what is right and what is wrong, what is justice and what is injustice."

JFK Welcomes Sudan's Leader

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ferik Ibrahim Abboud of the Sudan found Washington bright with the blue, yellow and green flag of his country and the welcome warm from President Kennedy Wednesday.

The two presidents emphasized peace in brief speeches during the welcoming ceremonies at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland.

Then they rode together in an open automobile in crisp blue weather behind military units and the Navy and Army bands to the President's guest house, near the White House, where the Sudan leader is staying.

Sudan, the largest country of Africa, with a population of 10 million, is classed as neutral in the cold war tensions.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy were honoring the Sudanese with a formal state dinner at the White House Wednesday night.

"Jet Of The Future"

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German Lufthansa airline Wednesday unveiled a model which it said was its idea of the supersonic passenger jet of the future. Its nose is needle-shaped and its arrow-like swept wings are mounted on the rear half of the fuselage. Two short stubby stabilizer wings are mounted near the front. The model has four engines.

Strandees Hope To Leave Today

LONDON (AP) — A group of 88 Californians stranded by non-arrival of a chartered airliner hoped Wednesday night to make it out of Britain Thursday after a 48-hour delay.

The members of the British-American Club of Los Angeles were to have ended their four-week visit with a flight home Tuesday. But their chartered President Airlines plane failed to arrive, leaving them stranded at London's Gatwick Airport.

Company representatives told them a plane would reach Gatwick from New York at noon Thursday. They were told to stand by until further notice.

Most of the group, including many British brides of soldiers formerly stationed in the United Kingdom, spent Tuesday night in hotels or with friends and relatives.

Knight Declares Edgerton Acted As Nixon Agent

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ex-Gov. Goodwin J. Knight said Wednesday financier J. Howard Edgerton, acting as Richard M. Nixon's spokesman, is the man who tried to nudge him out of the 1962 governor race.

Edgerton and Nixon promptly denied it.

Knight spoke at a news conference called to make good on his promise to name names if the former vice president denied his story that a Nixon man offered him any state job to get out of the contest for the Republican nomination for governor.

He said Nixon once offered to endorse him, even offered to help plan his campaign, then decided to run himself and designated Edgerton to try to get Knight to withdraw.

Edgerton, Knight said, offered him any job up to California chief justice if he would step out in favor of Nixon. Knight was Earl Warren's successor as governor from 1953-58.

Nixon, unsuccessful GOP presidential candidate last year, announced a week ago that he would run for governor and not try for the presidency in 1964.

Knight, whose hat already was in the ring, reacted with a charge that Nixon tried through a middleman to elbow him out of the way.

Edgerton, Knight's finance chairman in three campaigns but also a good friend of Nixon's, had said earlier he expected to be named by Knight. Wednesday he repeated his statement that he neither offered Knight a job or in any way spoke for Nixon.

Nixon, who earlier had called Knight's story false and libelous and said he'd swear on a Bible it wasn't so, said Wednesday: "This completely repudiates this whole ridiculous charge. I have no further comment. Mr. Knight has humiliated himself enough."

Knight claimed in a prepared statement that Edgerton's offer came during a telephone conversation, which Knight's wife and a friend overheard.

Edgerton agreed in a letter to Knight that the conversation took place, but as to Knight's version: "Goodie, this just simply is not the fact.

"There was not one single word mentioned by anyone to the effect that I was to be an emissary for either of you."

17th Russ A-Blast One Of Largest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russia Wednesday exploded one of the largest fallout-producing bombs in its current test series and exceeded its 1958 atomic testing pace.

It was the 17th Soviet blast since the test renewal Sept. 1, compared to 16 in the 1958 series. Its explosive force equalled several million tons of TNT, making it one of the nine largest this year.

The shot also increased the chances that fallout in the United States early next year might exceed the record levels reached in the wake of Russia's 1958 blasts.

Wednesday's blast was reported by the Atomic Energy Commission. "The detonation took place in the Arctic region in the vicinity Ojbnovaya Zemlya and the yield was on the order of several megatons," the announcement said.

Fishing Boat Runs Aground

POINT ARENA, Calif. (UPI)—The 108-foot tuna boat Star of the Sea ran aground in dense fog early Wednesday, but the Coast Guard reported that 10 of the 11 men aboard were rescued.

The 11th man was the skipper, identified as Andrew Anders. "I guess he's going to stay on," said the duty officer at the Point Reyes Coast Guard Station.

The San Diego-based clipper, laden with 160 tons of tuna, lay on its side on a sandbar near Point Arena 100 miles northwest of San Francisco.

The boat's plight became known when crewman John Dutra swam 50 yards to shore and telephoned the Coast Guard from a ranchhouse.

He said the boat's engineer, Joseph Silva, San Diego, had an injured leg.

Syria Arrests Saboteurs, Aims Finger At Egypt

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria's revolutionary government announced Wednesday it has rounded up saboteurs who had been hired abroad. It hinted strongly they were on Egypt's payroll.

The captives were in the pay of "those who claim Arabism, claim faith in unity," declared Information Minister Mustafa Barodi in a statement broadcast by Damascus radio.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the now-sundered United Arab Republic is the No. 1 exponent of unification of all Arabs, from northwest Africa to the Persian Gulf.

Nasser has called the Syrian revolt last week against Cairo's rule a setback "which must be the starting point for destroying reaction and treason" throughout the Arab sphere.

Baroodi said some fugitives from Syrian death sentences were among the sabotage suspects arrested by the revolutionary army.

"They were turned over to legal authorities to get their due punishment," the minister said.

He did not disclose the number held. Fugitives from Syrian death sentences could include members of any of several proscribed groups—the Communist party, the Nationalistic Greater Syria party, and former right-wing organizations. All these had a hand in Syrian affairs before Syria joined Egypt in the U.A.R. in 1958.

Rayburn Reported In Serious Condition

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — House Spaeker Sam Rayburn was listed in serious condition Wednesday at Baylor University Medical Center where he underwent a second day of tests to determine the cause of severe back pains.

The physician supervising the tests said that Rayburn is not critically ill, though he is seriously ill.

Three Go Down With Bridge

CLINTON, Ind. (UPI)—A huge chunk of a 61-year-old steel bridge crumpled into the storied Wabash River Wednesday with three persons, an auto and a truck when a woman driver rammed the span.

The woman and two state highway maintenance workers narrowly escaped death or serious injury when they plunged 30 feet into the river with crumbling concrete and twisted girders.

The collapse ruptured a natural gas line that carried fuel to this city of 5,800 persons. It snapped telephone lines and disrupted traffic on two highways.

"We went down head first," said truck driver William McBride, 27. "I felt like I was never going to hit bottom.

"The bridge and concrete were crumpling all around us. We angled toward the north side, then the south side of the bridge rolled in on top of us."

Mrs. Dorothy Atkinson, 34, of Scotland, Ill., was rescued—screaming—from her car as it straddled a girder at the surface of the river.

McBride and Victor Peer, 55, crawled out of their truck as the Wabash poured into it after it came to a halt, 60 per cent submerged, in shallow water.

Only Silk Purse Made Out Of Sows' Ears Presented To Smithsonian Institution

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—We lucky taxpayers were presented with an exceptional gift Wednesday: A silk purse made out of sows' ears.

Raymond Stevens, president of Arthur D. Little, Inc., an industrial research firm in Cambridge, Mass., gave the ornate ladies' handbag to the Smithsonian Institution.

Dr. Leonard Carmichael Smithsonian secretary, gravely accepted it, and it will now go on display in the nation's museum along with such other treasures as Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" and the bones of reconstructed dinosaurs.

Naturally the question immediately arises: Who would ever think of making a purse out of a sow's ear? And why?

Fortunately, Stevens was with the company from the time of the original squeal and therefore had the answers.

It was back around 1920, Stevens said, when industrial research was still new.

Arthur Little, the founder of the firm, got tired of hearing: "You can't do that. You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

"Who can't?" Little said. He astonished his workers by saying it would be done.

"You should have heard the griping," Stevens said. "We spent thousands of dollars, a lot of money in those days, on this thing."

In 1921 the company put out a booklet explaining its triumph. Its title, appropriately was "On the Making of Silk Purses from Sows' Ears," and it tells in detail how it was done.

"We wrote to Messrs. Wilson & Co. of Chicago who, it is needless to say, had a sow," the booklet says.

"Indeed they had many of them—so many that they cut off and placed at our disposal no less than 100 pounds of ears, with an affidavit that they were, as represented, the ears of departed sows," the booklet explains.

The ears were reduced to a glue, and through various chemical operations were turned into a kind of silk. This was handwoven into a purse.

"Dr. Little was more than a chemist," Stevens said. "He was a gentleman and a scholar. He looked on this as a contribution to philosophy, something to combat the attitude of defeatism of those who said a thing couldn't be done."

Wilson Memorial Bill Signed By JFK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy signed a bill Wednesday creating a commission to plan a permanent memorial to Woodrow Wilson and then handed the pen to Mrs. Wilson, who was at his side.

"I didn't dare ask you for it," said the 88-year-old widow of the World War I president.

Boy OK After Cave Ordeal

RISING FAWN, Ga. (AP) — A teen-age boy snatched from a 12-hour ordeal in a rocky, northern Georgia mountain cave said from his hospital bed Wednesday, "God must have had a hand in it."

"Nobody could have survived a 50-foot jump like that without His help," said fun-loving Ronnie Reese, 15. Rescuers had brought him to safety just before dawn, and he was taken to a hospital in nearby Fort Oglethorpe where he was pronounced fit.

"We had an awful lot of help from the Man upstairs to get this boy out," said Charles McGuire, chief of the Civil Defense rescue unit from Chattanooga which directed the operations.

What Ronnie, son of unemployed coal miner Alton Reese, described as a "jump" actually was a fall inside the newly discovered cave in the side of Fox Mountain. Hospital X-rays showed no broken bones and he is expected to go home—and cave exploring, if he wants to—in about two days.

The youth went into the cave "just for fun" with his brother, Byron, 17, and two friends, Kenneth Pennington and Richard Logan, both 19.

They entered about noon Tuesday, got hungry and decided to leave at dusk. They started climbing out of a 100-foot crevasse about half a mile from the mouth of the cave.

All the boys but Ronnie reached the top by using a rope.

"I just remember being the last one to go up the rope, getting within reaching distance of the top and tumbling to the bottom," Ronnie said. "I landed on my feet in a mass of rocks. The next thing I remember clearly was taking oxygen eight hours later, although it seems I woke up and was alone."

He had landed on a narrow ledge, about half way down the crevasse.

The other youths summoned help.

U.S. Revises Position On Naming U.N. Head

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Informed diplomats said Wednesday night the United States had agreed with the Soviet Union that the Security Council should take the first action to name a temporary secretary-general for the United Nations.

The United States previously had held out for having the General Assembly alone choose an interim successor to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, killed Sept. 18 in a plane crash in Northern Rhodesia.

The informants said that in view of the new U.S. stand, a group of about a dozen middle-of-the-road nations had shelved the idea of introducing a resolution on the subject directly in the assembly.

Hurricane Frances No Threat To U.S.

MIAMI (UPI) —Tropical storm Frances blew itself into the season's sixth hurricane Wednesday but kept its 90 mile-an-hour winds far from shore.

"Frances offers no threat to the U.S. mainland," the Miami Weather Bureau said.

A cold front over the Eastern seaboard steered Frances away from the shore.

In 1921 the company put out a booklet explaining its triumph. Its title, appropriately was "On the Making of Silk Purses from Sows' Ears," and it tells in detail how it was done.

"We wrote to Messrs. Wilson & Co. of Chicago who, it is needless to say, had a sow," the booklet says.

"Indeed they had many of them—so many that they cut off and placed at our disposal no less than 100 pounds of ears, with an affidavit that they were, as represented, the ears of departed sows," the booklet explains.

The ears were reduced to a glue, and through various chemical operations were turned into a kind of silk. This was handwoven into a purse.

"Dr. Little was more than a chemist," Stevens said. "He was a gentleman and a scholar. He looked on this as a contribution to philosophy, something to combat the attitude of defeatism of those who said a thing couldn't be done."

Knight Declares Edgerton Acted As Nixon Agent

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ex-Gov. Goodwin J. Knight said Wednesday financier J. Howard Edgerton, acting as Richard M. Nixon's spokesman, is the man who tried to nudge him out of the 1962 governor race.

Edgerton and Nixon promptly denied it.

Knight spoke at a news conference called to make good on his promise to name names if the former vice president denied his story that a Nixon man offered him any state job to get out of the contest for the Republican nomination for governor.

He said Nixon once offered to endorse him, even offered to help plan his campaign, then decided to run himself and designated Edgerton to try to get Knight to withdraw.

Edgerton, Knight said, offered him any job up to California chief justice if he would step out in favor of Nixon. Knight was Earl Warren's successor as governor from 1953-58.

Nixon, unsuccessful GOP presidential candidate last year, announced a week ago that he would run for governor and not try for the presidency in 1964.

Knight, whose hat already was in the ring, reacted with a charge that Nixon tried through a middleman to elbow him out of the way.

Edgerton, Knight's finance chairman in three campaigns but also a good friend of Nixon's, had said earlier he expected to be named by Knight. Wednesday he repeated his statement that he neither offered Knight a job or in any way spoke for Nixon.

Nixon, who earlier had called Knight's story false and libelous and said he'd swear on a Bible it wasn't so, said Wednesday: "This completely repudiates this whole ridiculous charge. I have no further comment. Mr. Knight has humiliated himself enough."

Knight claimed in a prepared statement that Edgerton's offer came during a telephone conversation, which Knight's wife and a friend overheard.

Edgerton agreed in a letter to Knight that the conversation took place, but as to Knight's version: "Goodie, this just simply is not the fact.

"There was not one single word mentioned by anyone to the effect that I was to be an emissary for either of you."

Wilson Memorial Bill Signed By JFK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy signed a bill Wednesday creating a commission to plan a permanent memorial to Woodrow Wilson and then handed the pen to Mrs. Wilson, who was at his side.

"I didn't dare ask you for it," said the 88-year-old widow of the World War I president.

The memorial authorized by Congress will be erected in the Washington area.

17th Russ A-Blast One Of Largest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russia Wednesday exploded one of the largest fallout-producing bombs in its current test series and exceeded its 1958 atomic testing pace.

It was the 17th Soviet blast since the test renewal Sept. 1, compared to 16 in the 1958 series. Its explosive force equalled several million tons of TNT, making it one of the nine largest this year.

The shot also increased the chances that fallout in the United States early next year might exceed the record levels reached in the wake of Russia's 1958 blasts.

Wednesday's blast was reported by the Atomic Energy Commission. "The detonation took place in the Arctic region in the vicinity Ojbnovaya Zemlya and the yield was on the order of several megatons," the announcement said.

Fishing Boat Runs Aground

POINT ARENA, Calif. (UPI)—The 108-foot tuna boat Star of the Sea ran aground in dense fog early Wednesday, but the Coast Guard reported that 10 of the 11 men aboard were rescued.

The 11th man was the skipper, identified as Andrew Anders. "I guess he's going to stay on," said the duty officer at the Point Reyes Coast Guard Station.

The San Diego-based clipper, laden with 160 tons of tuna, lay on its side on a sandbar near Point Arena 100 miles northwest of San Francisco.

The boat's plight became known when crewman John Dutra swam 50 yards to shore and telephoned the Coast Guard from a ranch-house.

He said the boat's engineer, Joseph Silva, San Diego, had an injured leg.

Syria Arrests Saboteurs, Aims Finger At Egypt

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria's revolutionary government announced Wednesday it has rounded up saboteurs who had been hired abroad. It hinted strongly they were on Egypt's payroll.

The captives were in the pay of "those who claim Arabism, claim faith in unity," declared Information Minister Mustafa Baroodi in a statement broadcast by Damascus radio.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the now-sundered United Arab Republic is the No. 1 exponent of unification of all Arabs, from northwest Africa to the Persian Gulf.

Nasser has called the Syrian revolt last week against Cairo's rule a setback "which must be the starting point for destroying reaction and treason" throughout the Arab sphere.

Baroodi said some fugitives from Syrian death sentences were among the sabotage suspects arrested by the revolutionary army.

"They were turned over to legal authorities to get their due punishment," the minister said.

He did not disclose the number held. Fugitives from Syrian death sentences could include members of any of several proscribed groups—the Communist party, the Nationalistic Greater Syria party, and former right-wing organizations. All these had a hand in Syrian affairs before Syria joined Egypt in the U.A.R. in 1958.

Rayburn Reported In Serious Condition

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — House Spaeker Sam Rayburn was listed in serious condition Wednesday at Baylor University Medical Center where he underwent a second day of tests to determine the cause of severe back pains.

The physician supervising the tests said that Rayburn is not critically ill, though he is seriously ill.

Boy OK After Cave Ordeal

RISING FAWN, Ga. (AP) — A teen-age boy snatched from a 12-hour ordeal in a rocky, northern Georgia mountain cave said from his hospital bed Wednesday, "God must have had a hand in it."

"Nobody could have survived a 50-foot jump like that without His help," said fun-loving Ronnie Reese, 15. Rescuers had brought him to safety just before dawn, and he was taken to a hospital in nearby Fort Oglethorpe where he was pronounced fit.

"We had an awful lot of help from the Man upstairs to get this boy out," said Charles McGuire, chief of the Civil Defense rescue unit from Chattanooga which directed the operations.

What Ronnie, son of unemployed coal miner Alton Reese, described as a "jump" actually was a fall inside the newly discovered cave in the side of Fox Mountain. Hospital X-rays showed no broken bones and he is expected to go home—and cave exploring, if he wants to—in about two days.

The youth went into the cave "just for fun" with his brother, Byron, 17, and two friends, Kenneth Pennington and Richard Logan, both 19.

They entered about noon Tuesday, got hungry and decided to leave at dusk. They started climbing out of a 100-foot crevasse about half a mile from the mouth of the cave.

All the boys but Ronnie reached the top by using a rope.

"I just remember being the last one to go up the rope, getting within reaching distance of the top and tumbling to the bottom," Ronnie said. "I landed on my feet in a mass of rocks. The next thing I remember clearly was taking oxygen eight hours later, although it seems I woke up and was alone."

He had landed on a narrow ledge, about half way down the crevasse.

The other youths summoned help.

One Falls To Death, Other Seized; Red Policeman Wounded

BERLIN (AP)—West and East German police engaged at dusk Wednesday in a gunfight over the Iron Curtain border during a Communist police pursuit of two East German refugees over the rooftops, eyewitnesses reported.

One refugee's flight to the West ended in a fall to his death as he shouted "freedom."

The other was captured by the Communists.

A Red policeman apparently was wounded.

The exchange of fire occurred as the Communists chased the refugees over houses in Bernauerstrasse—the scene of many dramatic escapes to the West.

West Berlin police then drew pistols and fired at the roof in an attempt to hold back the Red pursuers, the eyewitnesses said.

One Communist policeman apparently was hit in the thigh and was dragged away by his comrades, several witnesses said.

200 Witness Shooting

It could turn out to be the most serious shooting incident on the sector border since the Communists began erecting their barricade Aug. 13.

About 200 West Berliners witnessed the shooting on the Bernauerstrasse. This is the street where East Berliners have been jumping from residences in Communist territory to sidewalks in the West.

West Berlin police confirmed that they opened fire. They said shots fired by the Communist police at the refugees hit the sidewalk near West Berlin police and firemen.

Therefore, a police spokesman said, the West Berlin police considered they had been fired at and were entitled to return the fire in defense.

He said five West Berlin policemen fired 24 aimed shots, one of which hit a Communist policeman.

Police said the refugee, about 22, was killed instantly by his fall.

Ammo For Red Propaganda

The incident seemed certain to heat up Communist propaganda attacks on the Western allies' rights in West Berlin. Although the shooting was done by West Berliners, the ultimate authority in West Berlin lies with the occupying powers — the United States, Britain and France.

Shortly before the shooting incident, Gen. Lucius Clay, President Kennedy's personal representative in West Berlin, said the U.S. government is determined to defend West Berlin.

"In my many years of experience with the Berlin problem, I have never known our government to be as determined as it is now to defend the freedom of Berlin," Clay told visiting newsmen from the United States.

Clay was U.S. military governor of Germany during the Soviets' 1948-49 blockade of West Berlin and he presided over the mighty Allied airlift.

U.S. Revises Position On Naming U.N. Head

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Informed diplomats said Wednesday night the United States had agreed with the Soviet Union that the Security Council should take the first action to name a temporary secretary-general for the United Nations.

The United States previously had held out for having the General Assembly alone choose an interim successor to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, killed Sept. 18 in a plane crash in Northern Rhodesia.

The informants said that in view of the new U.S. stand, a group of about a dozen middle-of-the-road nations had shelved the idea of introducing a resolution on the subject directly in the assembly.

Hurricane Frances No Threat To U.S.

MIAMI (UPI) —Tropical storm Frances blew itself into the season's sixth hurricane Wednesday but kept its 90 mile-an-hour winds far from shore.

"Frances offers no threat to the U.S. mainland," the Miami Weather Bureau said.

A cold front over the Eastern seaboard steered Frances away from the shore.

Campaign Financial Aid Study Commission Named

WASHINGTON (AP)—The costs of the 1960 presidential campaigns have been estimated at $100 million. The question arises whether federal government should chip in on the bill for choosing its chief executive.

President Kennedy appointed a nine - member commission Wednesday to study that, along with other ideas about cutting the costs of campaigns.

Kennedy, who was in the midst of a campaign himself just a year ago, noted in a statement that funds for national campaigns traditionally had been supplied wholly by private contributions, mainly large sums from a relatively small number of contributors.

"It is not healthy for the democratic process—or for ethical standards in our government—to keep our national candidates in this condition of dependence," Kennedy said.

"I have long thought that we must either provide a federal share in campaign costs or reduce the cost of campaign services, or both," he said.

The special study commission, headed by Alexander Heard, dean of the graduate school at the University of North Carolina, was instructed to file its recommendations next spring.

Kennedy indicated he hoped to put some proposals before the Congress next year.

Congress itself considered the problem of campaign costs and length in the past year.

The Senate passed a bill to increase the present $3-million ceiling on campaign expenditures by national political parties to $14 million. The House hasn't acted on it. To comply with the ceiling, yet spend millions more, both major parties regularly sprout crops of variously named independent committees in election years.

Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., has estimated $100 million was spent in last year's presidential campaigns. Morton, former Republican national committee chairman, has suggested the government should do no more than permit income tax deductions for political contributions up to $50 to $100.

Butler Calls Postal Pay Veto "Illogical"

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's veto of the postal longevity pay bill was described Wednesday by Sen. John Marshall Butler, R-Md., as an "unfortunate and illogical action."

"A long standing inequity suffered by postal employes still remains on the books," Butler said in a statement.

"It was an unfortunate and illogical action. The president himself conceded that the present pay system needs extensive revision and yet he rejected an amendment which would have made a significant contribution to that much needed revision."

Butler added that Congress "is well aware of the present inequity weighing upon postal employees and will not be satisfied until it no longer exists."

Kennedy Teams To Seek Views In 10 Top Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is sending blue-ribbon teams of experts on domestic problems to 10 major cities next month to do some pulse feeling. It will provide the administration a chance to sell its home-front program at the grass-roots.

Cabinet officers and top agency heads will be on the teams, which will discuss urgent national problems and future needs, the White House announced Wednesday. The President will not participate personally, but will receive reports after each session.

Those invited to the two-day meetings will include state and municipal officials, civic groups and interested citizens, the White House said.

The announcement listed topics on which the discussions will focus, but press secretary Pierre Salinger said the main goal was to tell what Congress did this year and to get "detailed information on the impact of legislation enacted in those areas."

Salinger did not discuss the opportunity the meetings offered for drumming up support for the administration's program. But this possibility had been raised earlier by officials who said the seminars on bread-and-butter issues were being considered.

The Kennedy teams, each with four or five members, will seek views on such problems as unemployment, juvenile delinquency, education, housing, urban renewal and Civil Defense.

Other specific topics announced were: Equal job opportunities, health, metropolitan planning, fiscal and monetary policies, minimum wages, unemployment compensation, social security, physical fitness, veterans' needs, mass transportation and the Peace Corps.

The first conference will be held in Chicago and St. Louis Nov. 7 and 8. Others will be in Houston and Nashville Nov. 9 and 10, in Detroit and Cleveland Nov. 14 and 15, New York and Philadelphia Nov. 16 and 17 and San Francisco and Los Angeles Nov. 20 and 21.

U.S. Shipments To Reds Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department says it licensed only $907,000 worth of goods in September for shipment to Communist-bloc countries—the lowest amount for any month since 1955.

For the entire July - September quarter, the department reported Wednesday, licenses totaled $13.2 million — up slightly from the April-June total of $12.9 million.

While there was an increase for the quarter as a whole, licensing has dropped sharply since early August, when the administration decided to crack down on trade with the Communists in view of the Berlin crisis.

This crackdown coincided with complaints from some members of Congress against business dealings with the Soviet bloc. The House since then has voted to conduct a special investigation of licensing.

Shipments of most goods destined for Communist countries must be approved by the department, which is responsible for seeing that the Soviet bloc does not receive American goods which would boost its warmaking potential.

Negro Students March On City Hall, Are Arrested

McCOMB, Miss. (UPI) — A group of 114 Negro high school students marched on city hall on Wednesday protesting "discrimination" and were arrested after a scuffle broke out on the steps.

Police said they began arresting the Negroes after one of the leaders was knocked down.

The students were led by Bob Zellner of Montgomery, Ala., a white college student and a field secretary for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

A spokesman for the group claimed Zellner was choked by a white man on the city hall steps and a Negro co-worker, Bob Moses, was knocked down by a policeman and beaten by a white man.

Police Judge Robert Brumfield said charges of disturbing the peace would probably be placed against members of the group over 18 years of age. He said those under 18 were being paroled to their parents Wednesday night.

However, Charles Jones, a committee worker who was not in the group of demonstrators, said a "mass meeting" would be held later Wednesday night and there are "indications that many adults would like to join the children in jail."

Jones said the students walked out of Burgland High School on Wednesday afternoon and marched in two's, carrying placards, to city hall.

At city hall, Jones said, students gathered at the front door and one mounted the steps and attempted to read a petition complaining about the treatment of Negroes. He was arrested as were others who followed suit, Jones said.

Chicago El Train Crash Injures 39

CHICAGO (UPI) — A crowded elevated train slammed into the rear of a work train and climbed piggyback aboard a coal-laden flat car above a South Side street Wednesday. At least 39 persons were injured.

Chicago Transit Authority officials began an investigation to determine whether motorman Cornelius Shelby, 25, was travelling too fast.

A CTA spokesman said the passenger train left skid marks about 200 feet long behind the point of impact. Police said Shelby, who was not injured, had refused to give a statement.

Tourists Stranded Six Days In Erin Back Home

CHICAGO (UPI) — A party of Irish - American tourists, waving shillelaghs and sporting the green, came home to a happy reunion with worried relatives Wednesday after being stranded for six frustrating days on the Ould Sod.

The weary tourists trooped smiling and singing off a President Airlines DC6B at O'Hare International Airport after a trying odyssey that included an unexpected stop at Buffalo, N.Y., to take on fuel and pass through customs.

Leaders of Erin's Own Club, a Chicago Gaelic organization that sponsored the tour, said the tourists suffered no real hardship and had plenty of food during a six-day delay at Shannon Airport.

But they were critical of the treatment they received from U.S. government officials while first mechanical breakdowns, then a $6,000 fuel bill and then an exasperating inspection held them in Ireland for nearly a week beyond their scheduled return.

"The government did not do as much as we had hoped," said the Rev. Edward Salmon, president of Erin's Own Club. "We were sitting and waiting and no one was doing anything.

"I just want to say, 'Thank God we got home.'"

Father Salmon and Kevin Carty, the tour leader, said American government representatives finally stepped in and helped by loaning each American in the group $50 for living expenses.

But Carty was angered by the fact that the $50 loans were extended only to American citizens. He said several tourists who have applied for American citizenship were not eligible for the loans.

X15 Hits 2,850 MPH In 'Emergency' Test

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI)—The X15 passed another hurdle Wednesday in a test of maneuverability under simulated danger conditions, paving the way for a new attempt at an altitude record within several days.

In Wednesday's flight at speeds of 2,850 miles per hour, Maj. Robert A. Rushworth had the stabilization system turned off for two full minutes. He also flew minus one of the X15's four stabilizing fins.

Rushworth therefore was able to test the X15 using manual control, without the nine-by - three foot lower verticle fin which normally is used during the flight.

7 Boys Flee China

MACAO (AP) — Seven boys, ages 8 to 11, fled from Communist China before dawn Wednesday by swimming across the narrow but usually closely guarded Duck Channel, separating the China mainland from this tiny Portuguese colony.

A CTA spokesman said the passenger train left skid marks about 200 feet long behind the point of impact. Police said Shelby, who was not injured, had refused to give a statement.

Tourists Stranded Six Days In Erin Back Home

CHICAGO (UPI) — A party of Irish - American tourists, waving shillelaghs and sporting the green, came home to a happy reunion with worried relatives Wednesday after being stranded for six frustrating days on the Ould Sod.

The weary tourists trooped smiling and singing off a President Airlines DC6B at O'Hare International Airport after a trying odyssey that included an unexpected stop at Buffalo, N.Y., to take on fuel and pass through customs.

Leaders of Erin's Own Club, a Chicago Gaelic organization that sponsored the tour, said the tourists suffered no real hardship and had plenty of food during a six-day delay at Shannon Airport.

But they were critical of the treatment they received from U.S. government officials while first mechanical breakdowns, then a $6,000 fuel bill and then an exasperating inspection held them in Ireland for nearly a week beyond their scheduled return.

"The government did not do as much as we had hoped," said the Rev. Edward Salmon, president of Erin's Own Club. "We were sitting and waiting and no one was doing anything.

"I just want to say, 'Thank God we got home.'"

Father Salmon and Kevin Carty, the tour leader, said American government representatives finally stepped in and helped by loaning each American in the group $50 for living expenses.

But Carty was angered by the fact that the $50 loans were extended only to American citizens. He said several tourists who have applied for American citizenship were not eligible for the loans.

X15 Hits 2,850 MPH In 'Emergency' Test

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI)—The X15 passed another hurdle Wednesday in a test of maneuverability under simulated danger conditions, paving the way for a new attempt at an altitude record within several days.

In Wednesday's flight at speeds of 2,850 miles per hour, Maj. Robert A. Rushworth had the stabilization system turned off for two full minutes. He also flew minus one of the X15's four stabilizing fins.

Rushworth therefore was able to test the X15 using manual control, without the nine-by - three foot lower verticle fin which normally is used during the flight.

7 Boys Flee China

MACAO (AP) — Seven boys, ages 8 to 11, fled from Communist China before dawn Wednesday by swimming across the narrow but usually closely guarded Duck Channel, separating the China mainland from this tiny Portuguese colony.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —Now — a cry to fight death from dumbness.

The plea, from Mrs. Mary Lasker, springs from a need across the country for people who are curious and informed about all threads in the fabric of health—research, treatment, facilities, personnel.

Mrs. Lasker, chairman of the Health Education Committee, envisions the day when womanpower in Hometowns, U.S.A., has exerted itself enough to guarantee that deaths from dumbness cease.

In an interview, Mrs. Lasker defined a death from dumbness as one in which the victim—through ignorance—did NOT have a course of treatment that could have been life saving.

In theory, such a death might occur if the patient is in a hospital that hasn't kept its operating room clean.

Or it might occur if the patient is being treated by a doctor who hasn't kept up with the latest in research findings.

In particular, Mrs. Lasker is concerned about the lag between research findings that might be life saving — and the practical application.

For more than a decade, Mrs. Lasker has been engaged in the campaign against death from dumbness. Through the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation, she has encouraged outstanding work in research, public health and medical journalism.

Among her various health works as a volunteer is a position on the National Advisory Heart Council of the Public Health Service.

She has been relentless in her campaign to convince Uncle Sam that more funds ought to be earmarked for medical research and the training of personnel to man research frontiers.

Now, she claims, it is time for the women of America to join in this work in their own communities.

"Ask yourself," Mrs. Laskre said, "who is the best doctor in town for the treatment of a specific disease, which is the best hospital in town for the handling of a certain condition?

"What is the state of the hospitals in your town? Are they all accredited? If not why not? What can you do to help?"

She suggested that the women of America act as irritants and sparkplugs in local death from dumbness crusades.

Red Terror Taking Heavy Viet Nam Toll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Tuesday that the Communists' "mounting campaign of terror and guerrilla warfare" in South Viet Nam is claiming 1,500 lives every month.

The toll of South Vietnamese was cited as part of a U.S. effort to show that this Southeast Asian crisis has been growing steadily while the world's eyes were focused on Berlin.

The situation is such that the United States announced Monday that it is pressing ahead with "urgent measures" to bolster the defense of South Viet Nam against the Communist guerrilla attacks.

President Kennedy discussed the crisis Tuesday with Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand, whose country has been worried about the Communist attacks on both Laos and South Viet Nam.

Deputy Gets Man But Loses Job, Wife And Money

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — For 23 days and 5,000 miles, Deputy A. P. (Stormy) Burns trailed the fastest gun from the tough old Arizona town of Tombstone.

Burns caught up with his man in a Guadalajara, Mexico, hotel room, drew first and made the arrest.

But, upon returning his prisoner to Tucson, the deputy found: The sheriff had fired him; his wife had sued for divorce; he had lost $5,000 bail bond money.

It all began when Ronald Echols, Tombstone fast-draw exhibitor, was arrested on charges of using the mail to defraud in his business of selling guns. Echols was released on $5,000 bond posted by Deputy Burns, a fellow gun lover.

The bond was forfeited when Echols failed to appear in court Sept. 6, and Burns started the manhunt.

Burns tracked Echols across Southern California, to Tijuana, over to the west coast of Mexico and finally to Guadalajara.

Back in Tucson, Burns learned he had lost his job because he started the long chase without notifying his office. Further, Sheriff Waldon Burr said, deputies do not go a prisoner's bail. It's against regulations."

About the divorce action, Burns said, "I guess I was gone too long."

Soviet Launches Oil Offensive

By KARL H. MACK

FRANKFURT (UPI) — Behind headline-grabbing world crises, the Soviet Union has been quietly mounting an economic offensive —on a sea of oil.

The offensive has both economic and political implications and some observers say its goal is no less than world economic predominance.

Immediate objectives of the drive are to make an important part of the world dependent on Russian oil, extend Soviet influence in the oil-producing countries of the Middle East and South America and fill Russia's need of hard Western currencies.

The main targets of the Soviet oil offensive are West Germany, Japan and other free countries, where Russian oil is offered up to 30 per cent cheaper than world market prices.

Soviet satellite nations and other countries like Finland, Cuba and Pakistan have to pay considerably higher prices for Russian oil.

At West Germany's biggest tanker pier in Wilhelmshaven, for instance, Soviet oil is cheaper than at the East German border station at Frankfurt on the Oder.

The Russians can dump their oil at low prices without having to resort to any state economy maneuvers. Unlike American and British oil companies, Russia does not have to pay royalties which, in Arabia or South America, amount to about half the price of the crude oil produced.

To make Soviet oil more politically acceptable to European nations, the Russians use some detours. Increasing quantities of oil are flowing first into Italy, from where industrialist Enrico Mattei's Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi (ENI) recently started a new pipeline system which will pump Soviet oil into Germany.

This oil originates in the Ural oil fields of Tuimaza and goes through the "Comecon" pipeline to Czechoslovakia, where the pipeline will branch off through Austria into Italy.

Thus, from Italy, Soviet oil will be sold again—now coming from an inconspicuous Western supplier.

One thing that has been slowing the Soviet oil wave has been a lack of pipeline tubes and tanker space but the Russians have started working to eliminate this obstacle.

The Russians are buying tankers all over the world—new tankers, old ones and even semi-finished ships. Because of slackening business in tankers, the Soviets can get their much-needed space at rock bottom prices, cheaper than they could build the tankers. And at the same time they can save their own shipyards for the building of naval craft.

Japan and West Germany are the main targets of the Soviet oil offensive because the increased rate of their oil needs is far above the world average.

NATO can be expected to watch this development closely. The Soviet Union could make the booming West German economy partly dependent on Russian oil supplies and thus soften the NATO shield of defense.

The danger of the Soviet economic drive lies not only in the strengthening of the Soviet industrial potential and the dependency on which Russia could keep her customers. It also could affect adversely relations between the Western oil companies and their Arabian and South American producer nations.

The Geneva Producer Association, to which the Russians, Arabians, Iranians and some South American nations belong, is one of the first results of the Soviet drive.

The Russians will change their export aims only when the Arabians, Iranians and Venezuelans are ready to pay, if necessary, in political currency. By this the Soviets would be able to exercise a dual control over the oil supply of Europe—directly by their own supplies and indirectly by their increased influence in the Middle East and South America.

FRANKFURT (UPI) — Behind headline-grabbing world crises, the Soviet Union has been quietly mounting an economic offensive —on a sea of oil.

The offensive has both economic and political implications and some observers say its goal is no less than world economic predominance.

Immediate objectives of the drive are to make an important part of the world dependent on Russian oil, extend Soviet influence in the oil-producing countries of the Middle East and South America and fill Russia's need of hard Western currencies.

The main targets of the Soviet oil offensive are West Germany, Japan and other free countries, where Russian oil is offered up to 30 per cent cheaper than world market prices.

Soviet satellite nations and other countries like Finland, Cuba and Pakistan have to pay considerably higher prices for Russian oil.

At West Germany's biggest tanker pier in Wilhelmshaven, for instance, Soviet oil is cheaper than at the East German border station at Frankfurt on the Oder.

The Russians can dump their oil at low prices without having to resort to any state economy maneuvers. Unlike American and British oil companies, Russia does not have to pay royalties which, in Arabia or South America, amount to about half the price of the crude oil produced.

To make Soviet oil more politically acceptable to European nations, the Russians use some detours. Increasing quantities of oil are flowing first into Italy, from where industrialist Enrico Mattei's Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi (ENI) recently started a new pipeline system which will pump Soviet oil into Germany.

This oil originates in the Ural oil fields of Tuimaza and goes through the "Comecon" pipeline to Czechoslovakia, where the pipeline will branch off through Austria into Italy.

Thus, from Italy, Soviet oil will be sold again—now coming from an inconspicuous Western supplier.

One thing that has been slowing the Soviet oil wave has been a lack of pipeline tubes and tanker space but the Russians have started working to eliminate this obstacle.

The Russians are buying tankers all over the world—new tankers, old ones and even semi-finished ships. Because of slackening business in tankers, the Soviets can get their much-needed space at rock bottom prices, cheaper than they could build the tankers. And at the same time they can save their own shipyards for the building of naval craft.

Japan and West Germany are the main targets of the Soviet oil offensive because the increased rate of their oil needs is far above the world average.

NATO can be expected to watch this development closely. The Soviet Union could make the booming West German economy partly dependent on Russian oil supplies and thus soften the NATO shield of defense.

The danger of the Soviet economic drive lies not only in the strengthening of the Soviet industrial potential and the dependency on which Russia could keep her customers. It also could affect adversely relations between the Western oil companies and their Arabian and South American producer nations.

The Geneva Producer Association, to which the Russians, Arabians, Iranians and some South American nations belong, is one of the first results of the Soviet drive.

The Russians will change their export aims only when the Arabians, Iranians and Venezuelans are ready to pay, if necessary, in political currency. By this the Soviets would be able to exercise a dual control over the oil supply of Europe—directly by their own supplies and indirectly by their increased influence in the Middle East and South America.

Nigerian Diplomat Snubbed By Rt. 40 Restaurant

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Nigerian diplomat traveling to New York City with his family was refused table service at a restaurant on U.S. 40 northeast of Baltimore.

The diplomat, Aliyu Y. Bida, 38, said he later received service at a second restaurant which seated him, his wife and their two sons in a section reserved for Negro patrons.

Bida said the incident happened Tuesday as he was driving from Washington, where he had attended observances Monday marking the first anniversary of Nigerian independence at the nation's new embassy on Woodland Drive.

Bida, educational attache of the African nation's consulate in New York, said he planned to report the incident to the U.S. State Department through the Nigerian ambassador, Julius M. Udochi.

The diplomat said his family was served at the S. and E. Restaurant, after being refused a table at the Cottage Inn Restaurant and Bar.

"When we entered I was told the restaurant did not serve colored people," he reported. "I pulled out my identification card to prove that I was a diplomat, but the man there still refused. And then he gave me his business card to prove he meant what he said."

Clarence Rosier, the Cottage Inn proprietor, said he did not refuse to serve the Nigerian family. "I said I'd give them something to go."

"If we serve Negroes we will be out of business," Rosier said, "because our regular patrons will not come here and that is the story in a nutshell."

Reaction To Tawes' Stand

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Tawes' conditional endorsement of public accommodations legislation was greeted Wednesday with a "wait and see" attitude by interfaith groups.

The governor, who in previous statements had been more noncommittal, said Tuesday he would support such legislation if he is satisfied with its form.

William S. Shriver Jr., president of the Catholic Interracial Council, said of the governor's stand: "Personally, I couldn't be happier." But Shriver also attached a condition.

"Now, if he exerts the kind of leadership he's capable of giving," Shriver said, "we have a right to see this legislation passed."

Spokesmen for two other religious groups — the Baltimore Jewish Council and the Maryland Council of Churches — said the governor should say definitely whether he will back anti-discrimination legislation during the 1962 session of the General Assembly.

The three groups had asked Tawes for his "fullest support" of a public accommodations law in a joint statement last Saturday.

Also signing the statement was the Maryland branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Reapportion Call Issued By Women

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The Maryland League of Womens Voters said Wednesday that reapportionment of tthe state's General Assembly "is vital to representative government in the State of Maryland."

The league asked the Maryland Court of Appeals to overturn an Anne Arundel Circuit Court decision in which Judge O. Bowie Duckett said he was powerless to act because reapportionment was a legislative matter.

The womens' group filed a brief as a friend of the court. The league thus supported the position of the Maryland Committee for Fair Representation, which appealed Judge Duckett's ruling.

The high court is scheduled to hear the case sometime this month.

The league's attorneys, John I. Heise, Jr., and Charles A. Horsky, said in the brief that "Maryland now ranks near the bottom of the 50 states in assuring to its citizen that each man's vote will count equally."

Morgan Prexy Claims Charge Misunderstood

BALTIMORE (AP) — The president of Morgan State College said Wednesday he was misunderstood in statements criticising the University of Maryland's graduate assistance policies.

Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, Morgan president, emphatically denied he charged racial discrimination by the university in a recent convocation speech.

Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, president of the University of Maryland, replied Tuesday to Dr. Jenkins in a statement devoted largely to denying the university discriminated against Negro graduate students.

"I have specifically and repeatedly stated to both Dr. Elkins and in my convocation address that I do not charge racial discrimination in this matter," said Dr. Jenkins.

The Morgan State official said his charge was that graduates of Maryland colleges — not just Morgan State — were being discriminated against in the university's distribution of graduate aid.

"It is a reasonable hypothesis," said Dr. Jenkins, "that the department heads at the university who award fellowships and assistantships are not aware of the level of work being done at Morgan State College..."

Instead of recognizing the abilities and needs of students from Maryland colleges, "they tend to make awards to out-of-state students from better-known institutions," Dr. Jenkins said.

Of 200 to 400 graduate fellowships and assistantships awarded by the university each year, only two or three have gone to Morgan students, the administrator said.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Washington couple and a Hyattsville man are among 50 Peace Corps candidates selected for training for assignment to health and education programs in Thailand.

DENTON, Md. (AP) — An early morning fire caused $20,000 damage to a barn and livestock shed Wednesday on the Everngam Estate near here.

The blaze destroyed 20,000 bales of hay and 500 bales of straw. There were no animals in the shed at the time, and no one was hurt.

The first baby born at the new Carroll County General Hospital has been named Carroll.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The clang of farm milk cans will end March 1 at the Sealtest-Western Maryland dairy, the last large Baltimore dairy to handle can receipts.

A notice from Sealtest and the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers Inc. said the two organizations are working to make the transition as easy as possible for farmers still using cans.

During recent years there has been a steady transition from cans to bulk milk farm tanks.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 29-year-old prisoner serving 15 years for second-degree murder was found hanged Wednesday in the automobile license tag shop of the Penitentiary.

Warden Vernon L. Pepersack identified the victim as Rudolph Davis of Baltimore. He was sensentenced on Nov. 26, 1958.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Preston Hancock, 29, of Glen Burnie was sentenced Wednesday to death in the gas chamber for the rape of a 51-year-old Baltimore woman.

Criminal Court Judges Dulany foster and Edwin Harlan also imposed sentences totaling 30 years on Hancock for assaulting the woman's husband with a frying pan and for burglary.

News Commentary

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A fight over birth control is shaping up in the United Nations. President Kennedy could become involved, eventually.

Sweden and Denmark have proposed that the world body provide technical tools to help underdeveloped countries meet the problem of exploding populations.

The lines are quite clearly drawn. Catholic leaders oppose, on moral grounds, any artificial interference with the procreative process. Protestants generally feel that population must be controlled if want is to be wiped out.

Sweden and Denmark noted that the number of humans on earth is growing by more than 50 million a year. They cited a statement by World Bank President Eugene Black that this increase "threatens to nullify all our efforts to raise living standards in the poorer countries."

The Scandinavian sponsors urged the U.N. General Assembly to debate realistically "what active role the United Nations can play to assist in finding a solution."

U.S. religious publications are giving wide publicity to the proposal. The result may be a Catholic - Protestant controversy even more heated than the one over federal aid to parochial schools.

U.S. Catholic bishops already are on record—in a joint statement issued on Thanksgiving Day, 1959—with a warning that they will vigorously oppose any attempt to use U.S. tax funds, through the United Nations or otherwise, to promote contraception.

Among major Protestant bodies, on the other hand, there is strong support for international action to help underdeveloped countries control population growth.

It is noteworthy that the plea for U.N. action originated with two countries which are overwhelmingly Protestant (Lutheran) in population, and that its inclusion on the General Assembly agenda was protested by several Latin American countries with large Catholic populations.

There are sharp differences between Catholic and Protestant leaders both over the morality of contraception and over the need for measures to restrain world population growth.

Catholic scholars have published a number of books and articles during the past year challenging the idea that the world is experiencing a "population explosion" which must be controlled by widespread birth control programs.

These Catholic scholars acknowledge the existence of "relative over-population" in some countries. But they say the world's potential supply of food and fiber, if energetically developed and fairly distributed, is sufficient to care for many more human inhabitants than the earth is likely to have in the foreseeable future.

Pope John XXIII gave this view his official Vatican blessing.

Many Protestant leaders take precisely the opposite stand. They cite U.N. figures showing that the world population will pass the 3 billion mark before the end of this year, and will reach 6 billion within 40 years if present growth rates are maintained.

They argue that unrestricted fertility has become a major cause of human suffering, offsetting all attempts to improve living standards in the poor countries where population growth rates are highest.

Army Gets Go-Ahead On Coal Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has issued a final directive to procurement officers in Germany to proceed with the purchase of 440,000 tons of anthracite or coke from United States producers, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., reported Tuesday.

Bids have been submitted and low bidders will be announced in Germany within a few days, a Clarke aide said.

Procurement of American coal for use at U. S. military bases in Europe was ordered by President Kennedy recently after efforts by Pennsylvania and West Virginia members of Congress.

Inoculations are improving the health of North America's caribou herds.

Capitol Beltway 'Expediters' Named

BALTIMORE (AP) — John B. Funk, director of the State Roads Commission, named a four-man expediting committee Tuesday for the Capitol Beltway.

Funk has set a target date of 1963 for opening nearly all of the interstate highway to traffic. Maryland's section is 43.2 miles.

The expediting committee will keep a check on right-of-way acquisition, advertising of projects, utility liaison and other details.

The committee is composed of staff members of the State Roads Commission. The chairman is Roland E. Jones, urban coordinator and a former district engineer for District 3 (Montgomery and Prince Georges counties).

Other members are Lisle McCarl, chief of the SRC bureau of construction; William L. Shook, District 3 engineer, and Louis A. Yost, deputy director of the SRC's right-of-way division.

Heart Blood Clot Expelled By Pump

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Boston surgical team reported Tuesday it has had "encouraging" results in the treatment of coronary thrombosis with a pump that increases blood pressure within the heart to expel the clot.

The technique, used in experiments on dogs and tried out on a few humans, was described to surgeons attending the 47th annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. John A. Jacobey of the Harvard University Laboratory for Surgical Research said the pump draws blood from the heart during systole (heart contraction) and returns it during diastole (heart expansion) to increase the pressure exerted by the heart itself to thrust out the blood clot.

Jacobey said it was not clear what happened to the blood clot in the course of the treatment.

Ancient Israelite Settlement Found

JERUSALEM, Israel, (UPI)—Remains of an ancient Israelite settlement dating to King David's time 3,000 years ago have been uncovered near the Ein Gev settlement on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, it was reported Tuesday.

The discovery was made Sunday by an expedition that had been digging in the region for three days. The site was reported to be about 150 yards from the sea shore and to be yielding a rich treasure of religious artifacts and other relics.

Dorticos In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — President Osvaldo Dorticos of Cuba arrived in Moscow Tuesday on his way home from Communist China, the news agency Tass said.

Wall Street Views

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The old saying that every cloud has a silver lining could be applied to the current stock market performance.

Kenneth Ward, analyst for the brokerage firm, Hayden, Stone & Co., comments that deceptive and selective reactions accompanied by diminishing trading volume are quite normal and must be expected.

And, he contends, they are the strongest guarantee against excessive speculation, or an over-extended price position, and should be considered additional buying opportunities in carefully selected stocks.

Ward feels that the current phase should turn out to be no exception. He predicts that the Dow Jones industria' average will hold its strong support area indicated around 675-680, which marked the spring low, and the recently better-acting rails should hold in the 138-140 area.

"Nonetheless," he says, "it should be pointed out that investment thinking has shifted slightly during the past week."

"Although the domestic business background remains generally bullish and was spearheaded last week by steel production advancing to a 16-month high," Ward says, "the average investor has become more cautious and appears more concerned about how corporate profits will fare in a more closely managed economy toward which the federal government seems to lean."

Thomson & McKinnon, a brokerage house, is of the opinion that changes for a market rally seem limited.

It looks for the best gains to be in selected stocks rather than in the issues which make up the Dow Jones industrial average.

L. O. Hooper of W.E. Hutton & Co. says one of the most frequently heard bullish arguments doesn't ring true to him. That is that many people think they must buy stocks because of the "threat of inflation" inferred in larger federal government spending.

"It takes a shortage of goods and services and a surplus of money to make inflation," he says.

News Commentary

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A fight over birth control is shaping up in the United Nations. President Kennedy could become involved, eventually.

Sweden and Denmark have proposed that the world body provide technical tools to help underdeveloped countries meet the problem of exploding populations.

The lines are quite clearly drawn. Catholic leaders oppose, on moral grounds, any artificial interference with the procreative process. Protestants generally feel that population must be controlled if want is to be wiped out.

Sweden and Denmark noted that the number of humans on earth is growing by more than 50 million a year. They cited a statement by World Bank President Eugene Black that this increase "threatens to nullify all our efforts to raise living standards in the poorer countries."

The Scandinavian sponsors urged the U.N. General Assembly to debate realistically "what active role the United Nations can play to assist in finding a solution."

U.S. religious publications are giving wide publicity to the proposal. The result may be a Catholic - Protestant controversy even more heated than the one over federal aid to parochial schools.

U.S. Catholic bishops already are on record—in a joint statement issued on Thanksgiving Day, 1959—with a warning that they will vigorously oppose any attempt to use U.S. tax funds, through the United Nations or otherwise, to promote contraception.

Among major Protestant bodies, on the other hand, there is strong support for international action to help underdeveloped countries control population growth.

It is noteworthy that the plea for U.N. action originated with two countries which are overwhelmingly Protestant (Lutheran) in population, and that its inclusion on the General Assembly agenda was protested by several Latin American countries with large Catholic populations.

There are sharp differences between Catholic and Protestant leaders both over the morality of contraception and over the need for measures to restrain world population growth.

Catholic scholars have published a number of books and articles during the past year challenging the idea that the world is experiencing a "population explosion" which must be controlled by widespread birth control programs.

These Catholic scholars acknowledge the existence of "relative over-population" in some countries. But they say the world's potential supply of food and fiber, if energetically developed and fairly distributed, is sufficient to care for many more human inhabitants than the earth is likely to have in the foreseeable future.

Pope John XXIII gave this view his official Vatican blessing.

Many Protestant leaders take precisely the opposite stand. They cite U.N. figures showing that the world population will pass the 3 billion mark before the end of this year, and will reach 6 billion within 40 years if present growth rates are maintained.

They argue that unrestricted fertility has become a major cause of human suffering, offsetting all attempts to improve living standards in the poor countries where population growth rates are highest.

Army Gets Go-Ahead On Coal Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has issued a final directive to procurement officers in Germany to proceed with the purchase of 440,000 tons of anthracite or coke from United States producers, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., reported Tuesday.

Bids have been submitted and low bidders will be announced in Germany within a few days, a Clarke aide said.

Procurement of American coal for use at U. S. military bases in Europe was ordered by President Kennedy recently after efforts by Pennsylvania and West Virginia members of Congress.

Inoculations are improving the health of North America's caribou herds.

Capitol Beltway 'Expediters' Named

BALTIMORE (AP) — John B. Funk, director of the State Roads Commission, named a four-man expediting committee Tuesday for the Capitol Beltway.

Funk has set a target date of 1963 for opening nearly all of the interstate highway to traffic. Maryland's section is 43.2 miles.

The expediting committee will keep a check on right-of-way acquisition, advertising of projects, utility liaison and other details.

The committee is composed of staff members of the State Roads Commission. The chairman is Roland E. Jones, urban coordinator and a former district engineer for District 3 (Montgomery and Prince Georges counties).

Other members are Lisle McCarl, chief of the SRC bureau of construction; William L. Shook, District 3 engineer, and Louis A. Yost, deputy director of the SRC's right-of-way division.

Heart Blood Clot Expelled By Pump

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Boston surgical team reported Tuesday it has had "encouraging" results in the treatment of coronary thrombosis with a pump that increases blood pressure within the heart to expel the clot.

The technique, used in experiments on dogs and tried out on a few humans, was described to surgeons attending the 47th annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. John A. Jacobey of the Harvard University Laboratory for Surgical Research said the pump draws blood from the heart during systole (heart contraction) and returns it during diastole (heart expansion) to increase the pressure exerted by the heart itself to thrust out the blood clot.

Jacobey said it was not clear what happened to the blood clot in the course of the treatment.

Ancient Israelite Settlement Found

JERUSALEM, Israel, (UPI)—Remains of an ancient Israelite settlement dating to King David's time 3,000 years ago have been uncovered near the Ein Gev settlement on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, it was reported Tuesday.

The discovery was made Sunday by an expedition that had been digging in the region for three days. The site was reported to be about 150 yards from the sea shore and to be yielding a rich treasure of religious artifacts and other relics.

Dorticos In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — President Osvaldo Dorticos of Cuba arrived in Moscow Tuesday on his way home from Communist China, the news agency Tass said.

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The old saying that every cloud has a silver lining could be applied to the current stock market performance.

Kenneth Ward, analyst for the brokerage firm, Hayden, Stone & Co., comments that deceptive and selective reactions accompanied by diminishing trading volume are quite normal and must be expected.

And, he contends, they are the strongest guarantee against excessive speculation, or an over-extended price position, and should be considered additional buying opportunities in carefully selected stocks.

Ward feels that the current phase should turn out to be no exception. He predicts that the Dow Jones industrial average will hold its strong support area indicated around 675-680, which marked the spring low, and the recently better-acting rails should hold in the 138-140 area.

"Nonetheless," he says, "it should be pointed out that investment thinking has shifted slightly during the past week."

"Although the domestic business background remains generally bullish and was spearheaded last week by steel production advancing to a 16-month high," Ward says, "the average investor has become more cautious and appears more concerned about how corporate profits will fare in a more closely managed economy toward which the federal government seems to lean."

Thomson & McKinnon, a brokerage house, is of the opinion that changes for a market rally seem limited.

It looks for the best gains to be in selected stocks rather than in the issues which make up the Dow Jones industrial average.

L. O. Hooper of W.E. Hutton & Co. says one of the most frequently heard bullish arguments doesn't ring true to him. That is that many people think they must buy stocks because of the "threat of inflation" inferred in larger federal government spending.

"It takes a shortage of goods and services and a surplus of money to make inflation," he says.

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 65 "His courage was as undoubted as his intelligence, and he was every inch a soldier. The colonel of the regiment testifies that upon parade, after he had been a year in the service, he always gave heed to 'Attention,' with his head obliquely to the front, his right eye turned upon the parade commander. . . . After parade had been dismissed, he would lay aside his soldierly manner, flap his wings, and make himself generally at home."

That is from an account in 1866 of "Old Abe," the most famous of regimental mascots. The eagle was captured as a fledgling early in 1861 by a Wisconsin Chippewa named Chief Sky. The Indian sold the bird for a bushel of corn to a white who found a fast-growing eagle a demanding possession. So it became an inspired—and inspiring—going away present to Eau Claire's Co. C, 8th Wisconsin Volunteer Regt.

"Old Abe," adopted by the whole regiment, was provided a perch alongside the regimental colors. He was there through 36 battles in the next four years.

"Abe" learned to distinguish between colors and when he espied gray-clad Rebels he uttered shrill cries of warning. He flapped his wings at the sight of men in blue uniforms. "Abe" made the 8th Wisconsin perhaps the best-known regiment in the Union Army, and was deemed such a force in the regiment's morale that Confederates directed special efforts at killing the eagle.

"I would rather have him than a whole brigade," one Confederate general, Sterling Price, said. "Old Abe" was wounded twice by sharpshooters, at Corinth and Vicksburg, but survived the war to enjoy a perch of honor in Wisconsin's Capitol.

He died March 1881 in consequence of breathing smoke in a fire in the Capitol. His body was preserved through taxidermy.

Webster To Introduce Tawes Today At Education Meeting

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County public schools, will introduce Gov. J. Millard Tawes at today's opening session of the Maryland Association of Boards of Education at Annapolis.

Kenneth R. Malcolm, president of the state group and also a member of the Allegany County Board of Education, has named Webster to introduce the governor because both men are natives of Somerset County on the Eastern Shore.

Gov. Tawes is from Crisfield and Webster from Deal's Island.

Malcolm will preside at the two-day conference, which will have events at both Carvel Hall and Key Memorial Hall.

Principal speaker at the session will be Sterling McMurrin, U. S. commissioner of education.

Officers will be elected at the conference. Members of the Allegany County Board of Education to attend other than Malcolm are J. Goodloe Jackson, president; Mrs. Richard Winer, T. Donald Shires, and Mrs. George McA. Young.

There is a postal regulation requiring a person to address letters in ink. However, this regulation is not generally enforced.

Cooking School To Open Next Week

Capsuling a wealth of cookery information which may quickly transform Mrs. Homemaker into a celestial connoisseur will be two talented and entertaining home economists as they present the spectacular four-day program, "Galaxy of Foods."

Miss Mary Metag and Miss Elizabeth McKeldin, graduate home economists with the National Live Stock and Meat Board, are skilled in demonstration techniques and thoroughly trained in the art of foods preparation. They will launch their entertaining flight into the "Galaxy of Foods" sponsored by The Times-News October 10, 11, 12 and 13 at 9:15 a. m. at the Strand Theatre.

Each of the home economists, making up the lecture-demonstration team, has a well-balanced knowledge of all foods, gained through their formal education and years of practical experience in the kitchen and on the lecture stage. They conduct the presentations with sincerity and friendliness, having developed the accurate timing and teamwork necessary for a perfect performance. The amount of elaborate preparation undertaken by the girls is well evidenced by the smooth-flowing precision between the back-stage kitchen and the on-stage demonstration being conducted.

As a bonus to the new and important information about preparing food, the homemakers in the audience also learn new facts about nutrition. The home economists' suggestion include facts from the latest authentic discoveries of nutrition researchers. They have found that foods which contain the essential nutrients — protein, minerals and vitamins— can all be prepared in an appetizing manner, adding to the taste-appeal of the meal.

Although the home economists are on the road throughout a good deal of the year, they spend the summer months in the board's test kitchen, in Chicago, where they prepare and test the new season's recipes. They are eager and ready to bring to the nation's homemakers an entirely new program format.

Three Named For Conference

Local 244, International Typographical Union, meeting Sunday at the Labor Temple, named three delegates to the Tri-State Typographical Conference at the George Washington Hotel, Washington, Pa., October 21-22.

Delegates to the 90th semi-annual meeting will be Burland E. DeBolt, D. R. Beynon and J. W. Whetzel.

Carl R. Weatherholt, secretary-treasurer of Local 244, is president of the Tri-State group. He said Washington Local 456 will be celebrating its 60th anniversary and will be host.

It was also announced that Ronald Sterne, president of Local 244, has resigned his post.

Nominations for the presidency will be accepted until Sunday and an election is scheduled October 25.

The home economists' suggestion include facts from the latest authentic discoveries of nutrition researchers. They have found that foods which contain the essential nutrients — protein, minerals and vitamins— can all be prepared in an appetizing manner, adding to the taste-appeal of the meal.

Although the home economists are on the road throughout a good deal of the year, they spend the summer months in the board's test kitchen, in Chicago, where they prepare and test the new season's recipes. They are eager and ready to bring to the nation's homemakers an entirely new program format.

Tawes Proclaims Space Flight Week

Albert M. Jacobs, superintendent of technical training at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, and president of the Allegheny Section of the American Rocket Society, has been informed by Gov. J. Millard Tawes that he has proclaimed the period from October 9 through October 15 as "Space Flight Week."

Jacobs said the proclamation was issued in response to a request by the Allegheny Section that the observance be held in connection with a week-long meeting of the American Rocket Society next week in New York City.

A feature of the meeting, Jacobs explained, will be the society's "Flight Report to the Nation." The Allegheny Section, he continued, will mark the observance by exhibits and lectures before civic and fraternal organizations and in schools.

In his proclamation, the governor cited the "importance of astronautics to every American," and of "continuing information to the public on the progress of the nation's space flight program."

Ridgeley Cites Dog Problem In Community

Complaints of dogs running unattended through the community were registered at Tuesday's meeting of the Ridgeley Mayor and Council.

Chief Chandler said licensed dogs that are picked up are kept for 15 days before being destroyed, and that unlicensed canines are kept five days before destroyed.

Folk Festival Opens Friday At Springs, Pa.

In the small village of Springs, Pa., just three miles north of Grantsville on Route 417, the citizens of this Amish-Mennonite community are busily preparing for the fourth Springs Homecoming and Folk Festival sponsored by the Springs Historical Society and Penn Alps.

The festival will open at 10 a. m. Friday, at the large field adjacent to the Springs Mennonite Church, and conclude after dark Saturday, with old-fashioned group singing.

Featured as in former years will be demonstrations of early pioneer activities of farm, trades shops and household as well as the productions of art forms of today and yesterday.

The unique Pennsylvania Dutch food will be served to the thousands of persons who annually visit the festival.

Among the many pioneer crafts to be demonstrated at the festival will be pottery-throwing on a wheel.

This ancient art, so richly depicted in the Bible and in many literary classics, was of prime importance to the early settlers of the Allegheny Highlands and the Casselman Valley was no exception.

The pioneers into the valley settled there on what was the Western frontier in the middle 1700s. Potteries were established at Salisbury, West Salisbury and near Alverno, on Route 219.

Orville Dayton, art instructor of Waynesburg, Pa., in the foothills of the Alleghenies, will be throwing traditional forms on the potter's wheel in demonstrations for the crowds who attend the festival.

The area between Blacksville, W. Va., and Greensburg, Pa., has long been famous for its excellent clays and pottery forms, and the Waynesburg College Museum houses many early pieces of real significance.

Among other features which will be new at this year's festival will be a 44-foot by 88-foot tent where some 30 crafts demonstrations will be in progress, together with a pioneer kitchen and its beehive of activity.

More concession stands are planned, and there will be bus tours. One will be a visit to Yoder into the mountains of Garrett County along historic Route 40 ending with a visit to Yoder School or "Dutch College" as it is known among residents of that section.

Another will take groups along country roads with their brilliant autumn leaves into the heart of Somerset County, featuring Amish churches, the oldest houses of the area, and a sugar camp in operation.

A new tour this year takes guests to the highest point in Pennsylvania, Mt. Davis on Negro Mountain, via a rugged terrain rich in mountain lore and tales of pre-Civil War days. The striking beauty of the autumn glory of the Alleghenies will make all three tours popular.

The nearby Springs museum of many objects of the early settlement of Casselman Valley will be open as will Penn Alps on Route 40 one-half mile east of Grantsville.

Terra Alta Youth Wins Poultry Award

A West Virginia youth who borrowed $200 when he was nine years old to start his own poultry business was named "Star Poultry Boy" of the 14 Northeastern states Tuesday in Harrisburg, Pa.

The honor was conferred on James Teets, 17, of Terra Alta, Preston County, at the annual youth dinner of the Northeast Poultry Producers Council Exposition.

Teets, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Teets, 401 Aurora Avenue, owns $6,959 worth of equipment including a huge poultry house, automatic feeders, waterers, pit cleaners and rollaway nests. Last year he sold 112,350 eggs.

The youthful poultryman expects to increase his laying flock to 6,500 hens later this month. At present he has 5,000.

Teets, a senior at Terra High School, plans to enter West Virginia University.

His brother, Robert, 11, is interested in the "cattle-sheep business."

A Pennsylvania 4-H team took top honors in the 4-H poultry judging contest. Maryland placed second.

Maryland also nailed down first place in the 4-H egg judging contest.

Enrolls At University

Michael H. Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorn Stone, of 407 McMullen Highway, a graduate of Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy, is a member of the Brown University Freshmen Class, and is a candidate for a Bachelor of Arts degree at the Providence, R. I., institution.

A hippo may weigh up to three tons and have skin two inches thick.

Folk Festival Opens Friday At Springs, Pa.

In the small village of Springs, Pa., just three miles north of Grantsville on Route 417, the citizens of this Amish-Mennonite community are busily preparing for the fourth Springs Homecoming and Folk Festival sponsored by the Springs Historical Society and Penn Alps.

The festival will open at 10 a. m. Friday, at the large field adjacent to the Springs Mennonite Church, and conclude after dark Saturday, with old-fashioned group singing.

Featured as in former years will be demonstrations of early pioneer activities of farm, trades shops and household as well as the productions of art forms of today and yesterday.

The unique Pennsylvania Dutch food will be served to the thousands of persons who annually visit the festival.

Among the many pioneer crafts to be demonstrated at the festival will be pottery-throwing on a wheel.

This ancient art, so richly depicted in the Bible and in many literary classics, was of prime importance to the early settlers of the Allegheny Highlands and the Casselman Valley was no exception.

The pioneers into the valley settled there on what was the Western frontier in the middle 1700s. Potteries were established at Salisbury, West Salisbury and near Alverno, on Route 219.

Orville Dayton, art instructor of Waynesburg, Pa., in the foothills of the Alleghenies, will be throwing traditional forms on the potter's wheel in demonstrations for the crowds who attend the festival.

The area between Blacksville, W. Va., and Greensburg, Pa., has long been famous for its excellent clays and pottery forms, and the Waynesburg College Museum houses many early pieces of real significance.

Among other features which will be new at this year's festival will be a 44-foot by 88-foot tent where some 30 crafts demonstrations will be in progress, together with a pioneer kitchen and its beehive of activity.

More concession stands are planned, and there will be bus tours. One will be a visit to Yoder into the mountains of Garrett County along historic Route 40 ending with a visit to Yoder School or "Dutch College" as it is known among residents of that section.

Another will take groups along country roads with their brilliant autumn leaves into the heart of Somerset County, featuring Amish churches, the oldest houses of the area, and a sugar camp in operation.

A new tour this year takes guests to the highest point in Pennsylvania, Mt. Davis on Negro Mountain, via a rugged terrain rich in mountain lore and tales of pre-Civil War days. The striking beauty of the autumn glory of the Alleghenies will make all three tours popular.

The nearby Springs museum of many objects of the early settlement of Casselman Valley will be open as will Penn Alps on Route 40 one-half mile east of Grantsville.

Terra Alta Youth Wins Poultry Award

A West Virginia youth who borrowed $200 when he was nine years old to start his own poultry business was named "Star Poultry Boy" of the 14 Northeastern states Tuesday in Harrisburg, Pa.

The honor was conferred on James Teets, 17, of Terra Alta, Preston County, at the annual youth dinner of the Northeast Poultry Producers Council Exposition.

Teets, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Teets, 401 Aurora Avenue, owns $6,959 worth of equipment including a huge poultry house, automatic feeders, waterers, pit cleaners and rollaway nests. Last year he sold 112,350 eggs.

The youthful poultryman expects to increase his laying flock to 6,500 hens later this month. At present he has 5,000.

Teets, a senior at Terra High School, plans to enter West Virginia University.

His brother, Robert, 11, is interested in the "cattle-sheep business."

A Pennsylvania 4-H team took top honors in the 4-H poultry judging contest. Maryland placed second.

Maryland also nailed down first place in the 4-H egg judging contest.

This Week In Congress

by Rep. Charles Mathias

It was the echo of an uncertain trumpet that seemed to resonate in the night air at 4:20 a. m. on Wednesday morning when the House of Representatives adjourned sine die. The atmosphere of uncertainty was in sharp contrast to that day in January a few months ago in time but so long ago in history when it seemed that the American people were entering upon a new era with a new Administration. The contrast between what seemed to be a clarion call on January 20 and the uncertainty of adjournment on September 27 were the result of defeat in Cuba, frustration in Laos and Southeastern Asia, and fear in Berlin. With courage and patience we may still resolve our problems, mend our mistakes and find new opportunities for those we have lost. In spite of all the crises and confusion of past months, the First Session of the 87th Congress has accomplished some constructive work.

One of the most important accomplishments was enactment of the Mutual Security Act of 1961. The Act established a foreign aid assistance program which will allow more long range planning than in the past, giving authority to the President to allow him to make long range plans in the administration of the foreign aid program. This five-year planning authority, subject to annual review by the Congress, was a major step forward in our Mutual Security Program.

The Congress has also authorized the expenditure of funds for the largest defense budget in the history of our country. The need for this increased defense budget is due to the fact that the United States must remain constantly on the alert to defend against aggression at any place in the world and must also maintain a defense establishment at home which has the effect of deterring aggression against the continental United States and our allies. A significant part of this defense budget is for research and development in nuclear and space technology which will have both military and domestic value.

The amendments to the Social Security Act approved this year liberalized benefits for one out of every four persons who received Social Security retirement income. The new law also provides that men may retire at age 62 with a slight reduction in monthly payments.

The national highway program which was instituted under the Eisenhower Administration has been continued on an increased pay-as-you-go-basis. The results of this highway construction program have been and will continue to be seen in Maryland. The Potomac Valley, as well as all other river basins, will be improved by the extension and expansion of the Water Pollution Control Act.

One of the last bills approved by the Congress established the United States Arms Control Agency. This new agency will coordinate and direct our preparation for present and future arms control problems and will insure that we are prepared to meet the growing problems of world armament.

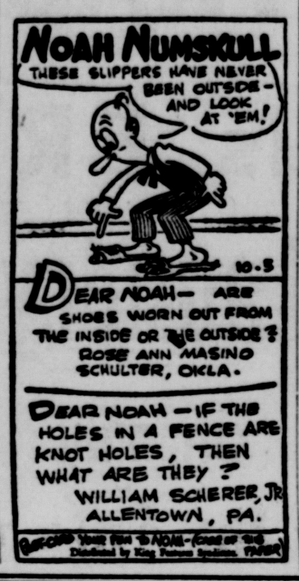
As far as Maryland in general and the sixth Congressional District are concerned some of these programs will be more of a burden than a benefit. The farm bill was designed to help the Middle West without regard to its effect on eastern farmers and city dwellers who will bear the cost of the tax burden and higher costs of living and farm operation. The housing bill will prove to be an expensive adventure with $450,000,000 in the pork barrel for community facilities alone; more in the pork barrel than was provided for all of the nation's depressed areas.

On Thursday of last week I attended the Frederick Fair and will be travelling through all of the counties in the sixth Congressional District during the Congressional recess. I shall continue to report to you each week in this newspaper.

To Produce Glycerin

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new and economical method for manufacturing synthetic glycerin has been developed by the organics division of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., it was announced. The corporation is building a multi-million dollar plant to produce glycerin by the new method at the division's Doe Run complex in Brandenburg, Ky.

William Otis of Massachusetts, was the inventor of the steam shovel.



To Buy Plant

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI)— A verbal agreement has been made by Machlett Laboratories to buy the Danvers, Mass., plant of Columbia Broadcasting System. Machlett officials said the 160,000 square foot plant will be used as an addition to the power and X-ray tube production facilities.

Electric Output Up

NEW YORK (UPI)—Electric energy output throughout the nation last week rose to 15,340,000,000 kilowatthours from 15,025,000,000 a week earlier and 14,161,000,000 in the same week last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported Wednesday.

What About Cheap Atomic Power?

It is a rare month that passes without new predictions that economic atomic power is just around the corner. The latest contribution is by Dr. C. Rogers McCullough, formerly with the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. McCullough's prediction is that small underground nuclear power plants might eventually compete with coal and oil as a source of power and light. But he noted that even large nuclear generating plants cannot yet match the cost of producing electricity by coal, and suggested that large-scale manufacture of small plants might bring the cost down enough to make them economical.

As Dr. McCullough was delivering his cautious prophecy, Consolidated Edison Co. of New York announced the purchase of equipment to add one million kilowatts to its present generating capacity of approximately five million kilowatts. Significantly, the power source is to be not nuclear, but coal or oil.

Added to the decision of Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. to abandon month-to-month purchase of coal in favor of a 10-year contract, and recent acquisition of coal land leases by utility companies in other parts of the country, the New York utility's action suggests that economical nuclear power is still far off.

While this should not discourage further efforts to make the atom economically competitive with conventional power sources, it should encourage a business-like approach, recognizing the limitations as well as the potential of atomic power.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Robert Hill's Testimony

Robert Hill served in India, Costa Rica, El Salvador and Mexico. In Mexico he was United States Ambassador.

In 1957, Dr. Milton Eisenhower came to Mexico and was a house guest at the Embassy. Ambassador Hill testified:

"The U.S. Embassy in Mexico was very concerned about the Cuban problem and how it would affect our relations with Mexico. We felt that with Dr. Eisenhower coming to Mexico, it would give us an opportunity to at least give him our point of view regarding the danger of Castro and Communism in Cuba and how it might affect the relations between the United States and Mexico."

Ambassador Hill had tried to get this information before the State Department and President Eisenhower but had not been very successful. He hoped that he might use Dr. Milton Eisenhower's presence in Mexico for a briefing on the Cuban situation. Ambassador Hill found that his presentation of the situation about eight months after Castro took power was opposed by William Wieland, chief of the Cuba and Mexico desk of the State Department. During the long briefing of Dr. Milton Eisenhower, which took place on an airplane, each time any of the Embassy people described Castro as a Communist or the Cuban Revolution as a Communist movement, the statement was denied by Wieland. The argument reached such heat that Colonel Glawe said that "Wieland was either a damn fool or a Communist."

Mr. Sourwine, the counsel for the Internal Security Subcommittee, asked:

"Did Mr. Wieland assert to Dr. Eisenhower that Castro was not a Communist or was not surrounded or influenced by them?"

To this, Ambassador Hill replied:

"In every instance where we tried to present Communist infiltration in the government of Castro it was met with a rebuff by Mr. Wieland."

"On occasion, I wrote the Department of State, cited my differences of opinion and said I thought it was unfortunate that these pro-Castro documents were being circulated among the embassies around the world, because this man was evil and would cause embarrassment and trouble for the United States."

Regarding the San Salvador meeting of American ambassadors held in April 1959, more than three months after Castro took power in Cuba, Ambassador Hill says:

"My opinion was that the meeting was designed to set the policy of patience and forbearance in dealing with Mr. Castro.

"I took issue with Ambassador Bonsal, because I felt that, despite his excellent presentation . . . . that patience and forbearance in dealing with a Communist would lead to disaster for the United States."

Hill said, ". . . . well, I think now we have an opportunity to judge whether it is a third country position or whether it is Communism. I say it has been Communist from the start, beginning on January 1, 1959, when he came to power. He completely destroyed the military, one of the first moves, destroyed the bureaucracy. His technicians were from Communist China and Moscow. I assume they weren't there advocating a third country position; that they were there promoting Communism."

As one reads Ambassador Hill's testimony, it becomes clear that the State Department and the CIA had ample information on Castro but that the evaluation was incompetent. The information arrived in time but was ignored. Ambassador Hill's description of his chief, William Wieland, is given in this testimony:

Mr. Sourwine: . . . you told us that (in Executive Sessions) after Mr. Wieland had interrupted the briefing to defend Castro against the charges of Communism or Communist connections, you finally turned to Mr. Wieland and said:

"I do not recall asking you to be in on this conversation. Dr. Eisenhower has agreed to listen to a man of integrity and experience in Latin America . . ."

Mr. Hill: That is correct.

Mr. Sourwine (reading):

". . . . as far as I can see, you do not qualify because what Mr. Leddy is discussing at the moment comes from the joint intelligence report of June 1959, regarding Communist infiltration in Cuba."

Mr. Wieland said, "There is no evidence of Communist infiltration in Cuba."

The testimony is most startling because there can be no doubt that some United States representatives in Cuba and in Washington were supporters of Castro. Theoretically these officials are supposed to follow a pro-American policy but they were more interested in certain men in foreign countries, no matter what effect it had on the United States. It is like Chester Bowles' belief in Nehru. It is particularly notable in this testimony that the United States has intervened and does intervene in the affairs of other countries. Such intervention is denied but it is clear from Hill's testimony that we did intervene.

Kennedy Seems To Favor Ike Over Truman In Dispute About Berlin

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—The friends of ex-President Harry Truman, Democrat, are a bit miffed with President Kennedy, Democrat, for bowing to ex-President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican, over Berlin. They think Kennedy should stick up for his own side a little more.

The famous feud between the two ex-Presidents began over Berlin when Truman, in a speech in San Francisco during the 1952 Presidential campaign, charged that Eisenhower was responsible for leaving Berlin isolated, 110 miles away from West Germany, with no guaranteed right of access. Ike has not spoken to Harry since.

In this feud between two famous ex-Presidents, Kennedy has appeared to side with Eisenhower He has sent Gen. Lucius Clay, Ike's close friend and former subordinate, back to Berlin, though Clay assumed responsibility in his memoirs for failure to get access rights to Berlin. On top of this, Secretary of State Rusk hastened to apologize to Eisenhower when the State Department issued a history of Berlin containing the statement that "the Western armies could have captured Berlin . . . but the supreme commander, Gen. Eisenhower, believed they could be more usefully employed against the major German forces elsewhere. As a result, the Soviets captured Berlin."

In contrast to the Kennedy administration's rush to apologize to Eisenhower, here is what Winston Churchill had to say when Eisenhower diverted American forces away from Berlin in the closing days of the war.

"If we deliberately leave Berlin to them (the Russians)," Churchill wired Eisenhower direct on March 31, 1945, "even if it should be in our grasp, the double event may strengthen their conviction, already apparent, that they have done everything. Further, I do not consider myself that Berlin has yet lost its military and certainly not its political significance."

Eisenhower had previously advised Stalin that he proposed to make the main American thrust along the Erfurt-Leipzig-Dresden line, instead of driving on Berlin. He had ordered U. S. forces when they reached Potsdam, a suburb of Berlin back to the River Elbe.

Republicans who criticized the State Department its implied criticism of Eisenhower in its "Berlin Background" pamphlet, claimed that the Big Three had agreed at Yalta to let the Russians take Berlin. Churchill's emphatic telegrams prove just the opposite.

Ike Switched Plan

Telegraphing President Roosevelt on April 1, Churchill said he had no desire to lower the prestige of Gen. Eisenhower in his relations with the Russian commanders. But, he continued:

"All we sought was a little time to consider the far-reaching changes desired by Gen. Eisenhower in the plans that had been concerted by the Combined Chiefs of Staff at Yalta and had received your and my joint approval. The British Chiefs of Staff were naturally concerned by a procedure which apparently left the fortunes of the British Army, which, though only a third of yours, still amounts to over a million men, to be settled without the slightest reference to Briish authority. They also do not understand from Gen. Eisenhower's message (to Stalin) what was actually intended . . ."

Persistent Churchill

In his April 1 wire to FDR, Churchill went into considerable detail about Eisenhower's switch in plans.

"Gen. Eisenhower, in his estimate of the enemy's resistance, to which I attach the greatest importance, now wishes to shift the axis somewhat to the southward and strike through Leipzig, even perhaps as far South as Dresden. He withdraws the 9th U. S. Army from the northern group of armies . . .

"I say quite frankly that Berlin remains of high strategic importance. Nothing will exert a psychological effect of despair upon all German forces equal to that of the fall of Berlin . . .

"If they (the Russians) also take Berlin, will not their impression that they have been the overwhelming contributor to our common victory be unduly imprinted in their minds, and may not this lead them into a mood which will raise grave and formidable difficulties in the future . . .

"I further consider that from a political standpoint we should march as far east into Germany as possible, and that should Berlin be in our grasp, we should certainly take it."

One day before this, Churchill had sent a telegram to General Ismay, Military Secretary of the British Cabinet: "It seems that Gen. Eisenhower may be wrong in supposing Berlin to be largely devoid of military and political importance. The idea of neglecting Berlin and leaving it to the Russians to take at a later stage does not appear to me to be correct . . ."

Churchill had also sent a telegram to Eisenhower, March 28, '45, complaining that Eisenhower had sent a telegram direct to Stalin changing miiltary strategy "without previously mentioning the subject either to Air Chief Marshal Tedder or to the Combined Chiefs of Staff."

Regarding this Churchill commented: "We all thought that this went beyond the limits of negotiation with the Soviets by the Supreme Commander in Europe."

When the British Prime Minister did not get a satisfactory reply from Roosevelt, he sent him another telegram, April 5.

"It still think it was a pity that Eisenhower's telegram was sent to Stalin without anything being said to our Chiefs of Staff or to our Deputy Air Chief Marshal Tedder, or to our Commander-in-Chief Field Marshal Montgomery," Churchill telegraphed.

Seven days later, Roosevelt was dead. No one was in a position to reverse Eisenhower. And that's how the Russians got to Berlin; also how the Berlin problem, which we are still arguing about, got started.

Democrats' Berlin Comments Embarrass JFK

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Not long ago President Kennedy talked about the need for the press to be more careful about what it printed on military matters that might become useful to an enemy. But the President now finds himself in an embarrassing position because, while his Secretary of Defense has effectually muzzled military officers so that they can't discuss even abstract ideologies, no such restraint has been applied to members of the President's own party in Congress who make speeches that the Soviet government, for instance, can interpret as a sign of the weakening of American policy in the current negotiations.

For while Mr. Kennedy uses strong and resolute words, there are at least a half-dozen unofficial Secretaries of State who give to the "unaligned" nations, as well as to the Soviets, the impression that Mr. Kennedy may retreat after all.

Here are some of the spokesmen for the Democratic Party in Congress and some of the things they say:

1. Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told a news conference in London a few days ago that the United States is "not without fault" in the Berlin controversy. Just what he means isn't clear, but he gave the impression that the United States has done something to precipitate the Berlin crisis. He is also quoted as saying later that "a change in the status quo (in Berlin) might be mutually valuable" to East and West.

2. Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, in London on a five-week fact-finding tour of Europe which will take him behind the Iron Curtain, told reporters questioning him about the Fulbright statement, that "our position has not changed a bit." He himself, however, only a day earlier in Rome had indicated that the United States might "negotiate" recognition of the temporary wartime boundary between Poland and East Germany as a permanent one. Though he stressed that he does not speak for the Secretary of State, the fact that Mr. Humphrey is assistant floor leader of the President's party in the Senate and chairman of the Senate Disarmament Subcommittee lends weight to his words and gives the "neutralist" world encouragement in their support of Moscow's position.

3. Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, floor leader of the Democratic Party, aiso has repeatedly indicated that he thinks it would be all right to change the status of Berlin. He calls for a "free city" and concedes the possibility of a change in its status. The announced position of the United States involves no such concession.

4. Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, an influential member of the President's party in the Senate who recently returned from a visit to Berlin, has just told the press that the United States should consider the possibility of giving "de facto" recognition to East Germany. He added: "A change in status for Berlin should be explored, but in no case should we agree to a change which might weaken Berlin economically, militarily or politically." He said all this after conferring with General Lucius Clay, President Kennedy's special representative in West Berlin, and declared he reached the conclusion that both General Clay and President Kennedy "have no intention of sacrificing or compromising any vital interest of the United States." The West Germans themselves indicate that they believe West Berrally and disintegrate from an lin will wither on the vine naturally and disintegrate from an economic standpoint if recognition is given to the East German government.

In addition to the foregoing spokesmen — whose words are carefully read in Moscow and doubtless interpreted as a sign that Mr. Kennedy will recede at the proper moment — there are others involved in incidents reported in the newspapers of the world. Thus, General Clay had an off-the-record conference a few days ago with press representatives, and afterward stories were printed that he, too, feels that "de facto" recognition of the East German is inevitable. He later issued a statement denying that he had said anything which could lead to the belief that America's position on Berlin was weakening.

Then there was a statement in the press over the weekend by Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court of the United States, who has just returned from a visit to Outer Mongolia. He urged that Outer Mongolia's government be immediately recognized by the United States and admitted promptly to the United Nations. This happens to be at variance with the present policy of the Department of State and happens also to be something that antagonizes the Nationalist China government in Formosa on whose Army America relies to help defend the Far East if another Korean-type war should arise there. Mr. Douglas is known to be a Democrat and a friend of President Kennedy.

Putting it all together, the Communists may well wonder whether these friends of the President and fellow members of his party are giving hints as to future policy. Anyone who knows anything about diplomatic negotiation is aware that it's hard to negotiate if your adversary knows from the start that eventually you will give in anyway. All such comments naturally become news and are widely printed.

But one wonders whether these various spokesmen realize that, unlike the Republicans — who have a natural right to criticize and attack, and whose views are discounted abroad — they, as members of the President's own party, can by their utterances be construed to reflect the administration's real purposes despite its strong phrases. One wonders also how much easier would be the task of the Secretary of State, Dean Rusk, if he didn't have so many kibitzers formulating foreign policy for him in the press and over the worldwide radio waves.

TAX FRAUDS — The Internal Revenue Service has just completed its most active year in the prosecution of tax laws. In the 1961 fiscal year ending June 30, the Service obtained 1,669 indictments compared with 1,194 in the preceding year.

"Persons brough to justice," an Internal Revenue official reported, "included representatives of almost the entire range of professions and businesses, from gravedigger to steeplejack."

About 16,500 tax fraud cases were investigated, and 3,677 of them became full-scale operations which required work on 116,000 leads, tips and bits of information.

Fines totaling $2.4 million and prison sentences totaling 299 years were meted out. Sentences averaged 87.6 days in prison, 1.15 years on probation and $8,026.75 in fines.

The long arm of the tax fraud section of the Internal Revenue Service apparently reached everywhere. Of the total cases, 38 were tracked into prison cells, where inmates of prisons were found who filed returns on imaginary incomes and withholdings in fraudulent attempts to obtain refunds of taxes they never paid in the first place.

The forecast is for a still higher workload this year. Toward the end of last fiscal year anti-racketeer efforts were stepped up in line with Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy's general drive on crime. As a result, there has already been an increase in the number of cases under active investigation.

The FBI's Commercial

By John Crosby

I was listening to the radio the other day and I heard a commercial from F. B. I. Director J. Edgar Hoover which went: "The onslaught of crime is today at an all-time high. Law enforcement is everybody's business. The ever increasing surge of crime costs the American taxpayer 22 billion dollars a year. You are one of the taxpayers sharing this cost. The front line of defense in this matter is your local police officer but he needs the supporting element of you, the citizen, to continue to do his job. Get interested in law enforcement. Support good government. Expect and demand efficient law enforcement and do your part to get it."

Get interested in law enforcement? Mr. Hoover, I am interested in law enforcement. I know that the onslaught of crime is at an all-time high. In fact, crime in this country has made its most substantial gains in the thirty-six years you have been head of the F. B. I. Under your benevolent eye, the crime syndicates are now rolling in wealth and respectability. Gambling, narcotics, and industrial rackets are now among the biggest businesses in this country, and hoodlum money is now infiltrating all sorts of respectable businesses.

Get interested in law enforcement! I am, indeed. But when are you going to get interested in law enforcement, Mr. Hoover? We are the only country in the world with organized crime on such a huge scale and we are one of the few countries without a national police force. Every time someone suggests a national police force for this country, you shoot it down and so well organized is your press relations and so docile is the press at accepting your word on police matters that all attempts to grapple with organized crime on a national level have been successfully throttled. I wonder if the F. B. I. wants the job or wants anyone else to have it for fear of dimming its glory.

"I was seriously concerned with organized crime before I took office," said Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy last April. "In the past two and a half months, I have become even more aware of how far racketeering has infiltrated our society. Racketeers have moved in from illegal enterprises to infect legitimate businesses, labor unions, and — as the newspapers noted again recently — sports. At the same time, the racketeers have tightened their hold on bookmaking, narcotics, extortion, prostitution, the numbers game, and other gambling."

Meanwhile, what were you up to, Mr. Hoover? A perusal of newspaper reports shows that you issued a stirring warning to housewives to be careful of babysitters. You also called for a relentless compaign against child molesters. I also have here your coloring cartoon ("Boys and girls —Color the picture and memorize the rules. Turn down gifts from strangers. Avoid dark and lonely streets. Know your local policeman. J. Edgar Hoover"). You called for a crackdown on "smut salesmen."

You warned the nation's shopkeepers, as you do every year, to beware of shoplifters. You proposed a new name for juvenile delinquents ("teenage brigands"). You deplored violence on television.

The number of arrests made by the F.B.I. in light of its $127,216,000 budget and in light of its own massive crime figures is rather modest. Only 10,000 last year. Hay many big shots of organized crime has the F. B. I. arrested in the last five or ten years? Are they looking for any? Has the F. B. I. any program for trapping any of those well-organized and enormously rich racketeers Mr. Kennedy talks about?

Visitors to F. B. I. headquarters are shown how the F. B. I. tracked down and slaughtered John Dililnger. A great crime epic all right, Mr. H., but it took place 27 years ago. The F. B. I. leaps into action with great speed at kidnappings. And, of course, it keeps the Communists in check. Or says it does.

But, Mr. Hoover, you ask me to expect and demand efficient law enforcement. Of whom? If you're afraid to tackle the crime syndicate, do you think my local police officer supported by me, the citizen, can do it? Nowhere in the world is crime more profitable, better organized, or less bothered by law enforcement than in the United States and you have been the top cop in this country for thirty-six years. Crime has flourished under you as it has never before flourished in the history of the world.

How do you explain that?

Prostate Enlargement Calls For Treatment

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Thirty per cent of all men over 60 have enlarged prostate. One-third of this group are bothered by the disorder and require help. The condition cannot be prevented and there is no way to stop the progress of the disease, once it has started.

The location of the gland is responsible for symptoms. It lies at the opening of the bladder and surrounds the tube that leads to the outside. The prostate protrudes into the opening of the bladder in much the same way as do the tonsils into the opening of the throat. Enlargement crowds the passageway and obstruction follows unless the excess tissue is removed.

Complete obtruction of the bladder is the end stage of prostatic enlargement. By this time, harmful wastes have accumulated in the blood and often are associated with weakness, headache, and loss of appetite.

But there is no need to wait this long, because the distressed bladder usually produces warning symptoms months to years earlier. Frequency of urination occurs, usually at night. Many men are awakened at least once and often two or three times at night as the disturbance progresses. In addition, it is increasingly difficult to start the urinary flow even though desire is present.

As blockage becomes greater, the bladder fails to empty thoroughly and some fluid is retained after each attempt to void. Mild lower abdominal pain may be an associated symptom. In some instances, retention creates a back flow that has harmful effects on the kidneys. This is the most serious aspect of prostatic enlargement and shows why treatment should not be delayed until complete obstruction occurs.

REMOVE PRESSURE

L. M. writes: I'm 59 and have a deteriorated disk that causes pain in my left arm, which I can't lift above my head for more than a second. What does the future hold for me?

REPLY

If the diagnosis is correct, the future is not bright unless a surgeon removes the pressure of the disk from the nerve leading to the arm. Continued pressure may be followed by complete destruction of the nerve and paralysis of the arm.

URINE CASTS

T. K. writes. Do casts in the urine always mean kidney disease?

REPLY

No. Their significance depends upon the number and other findings, such as red blood cells and albumin.

RED JOINTS

J. S. writes: Why are arthritic joints red?

REPLY

Redness is a sign of inflammation or irritation. This occurs during the acute stages of certain types of arthritis. The involved area is likely to be warm and tender to the touch, as well as painful when moved.

BLADDER CAPACITY

W. A. writes: I read your article about increasing bladder capacity in children. Can an adult bladder be stretched by following the same procedure of holding the urine for longer and longer periods?

REPLY

Yes, but there is no need to torture yourself unless a good reason exists.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

During composer - conductor Igor Stravinsky's first tour of the United States, his command of the English language was sketchy, to say the least.

One day in Milwaukee, the first violinist made the same ghastly mistake three times at a rehearsal. Stravinsky never ceased addressing the miscreant in the most polite terms.

Later a friend complimented him on his control. "How you could speak so politely," he marveled, "when you obviously were seething in rage inside, beats me."

"Ah," explained Stravinsky in his native tongue, "that is because I have learned only polite phrases in English. You should have heard what I was calling the blank-blank under my breath in Russian!"

What About Cheap Atomic Power?

It is a rare month that passes without new predictions that economic atomic power is just around the corner. The latest contribution is by Dr. C. Rogers McCullough, formerly with the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. McCullough's prediction is that small underground nuclear power plants might eventually compete with coal and oil as a source of power and light. But he noted that even large nuclear generating plants cannot yet match the cost of producing electricity by coal, and suggested that large-scale manufacture of small plants might bring the cost down enough to make them economical.

As Dr. McCullough was delivering his cautious prophecy, Consolidated Edison Co. of New York announced the purchase of equipment to add one million kilowatts to its present generating capacity of approximately five million kilowatts. Significantly, the power source is to be not nuclear, but coal or oil.

Added to the decision of Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. to abandon month-to-month purchase of coal in favor of a 10-year contract, and recent acquisition of coal land leases by utility companies in other parts of the country, the New York utility's action suggests that economical nuclear power is still far off.

While this should not discourage further efforts to make the atom economically competitive with conventional power sources, it should encourage a business-like approach, recognizing the limitations as well as the potential of atomic power.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Robert Hill's Testimony

Robert Hill served in India, Costa Rica, El Salvador and Mexico. In Mexico he was United States Ambassador.

In 1957, Dr. Milton Eisenhower came to Mexico and was a house guest at the Embassy. Ambassador Hill testified:

"The U.S. Embassy in Mexico was very concerned about the Cuban problem and how it would affect our relations with Mexico. We felt that with Dr. Eisenhower coming to Mexico, it would give us an opportunity to at least give him our point of view regarding the danger of Castro and Communism in Cuba and how it might affect the relations between the United States and Mexico."

Ambassador Hill had tried to get this information before the State Department and President Eisenhower but had not been very successful. He hoped that he might use Dr. Milton Eisenhower's presence in Mexico for a briefing on the Cuban situation. Ambassador Hill found that his presentation of the situation about eight months after Castro took power was opposed by William Wieland, chief of the Cuba and Mexico desk of the State Department. During the long briefing of Dr. Milton Eisenhower, which took place on an airplane, each time any of the Embassy people described Castro as a Communist or the Cuban Revolution as a Communist movement, the statement was denied by Wieland. The argument reached such heat that Colonel Glawe said that "Wieland was either a damn fool or a Communist."

Mr. Sourwine, the counsel for the Internal Security Subcommittee, asked:

"Did Mr. Wieland assert to Dr. Eisenhower that Castro was not a Communist or was not surrounded or influenced by them?"

To this, Ambassador Hill replied:

"In every instance where we tried to present Communist infiltration in the government of Castro it was met with a rebuff by Mr. Wieland."

"On occasion, I wrote the Department of State, cited my differences of opinion and said I thought it was unfortunate that these pro-Castro documents were being circulated among the embassies around the world, because this man was evil and would cause embarrassment and trouble for the United States."

Regarding the San Salvador meeting of American ambassadors held in April 1959, more than three months after Castro took power in Cuba, Ambassador Hill says:

"My opinion was that the meeting was designed to set the policy of patience and forbearance in dealing with Mr. Castro.

"I took issue with Ambassador Bonsal, because I felt that, despite his excellent presentation . . . . that patience and forbearance in dealing with a Communist would lead to disaster for the United States."

Hill said, ". . . . well, I think now we have an opportunity to judge whether it is a third country position or whether it is Communism. I say it has been Communist from the start, beginning on January 1, 1959, when he came to power. He completely destroyed the military, one of the first moves, destroyed the bureaucracy. His technicians were from Communist China and Moscow. I assume they weren't there advocating a third country position; that they were there promoting Communism."

As one reads Ambassador Hill's testimony, it becomes clear that the State Department and the CIA had ample information on Castro but that the evaluation was incompetent. The information arrived in time but was ignored. Ambassador Hill's description of his chief, William Wieland, is given in this testimony:

Mr. Sourwine: . . . you told us that (in Executive Sessions) after Mr. Wieland had interrupted the briefing to defend Castro against the charges of Communism or Communist connections, you finally turned to Mr. Wieland and said:

"I do not recall asking you to be in on this conversation. Dr. Eisenhower has agreed to listen to a man of integrity and experience in Latin America . . ."

Mr. Hill: That is correct.

Mr. Sourwine (reading):

". . . . as far as I can see, you do not qualify because what Mr. Leddy is discussing at the moment comes from the joint intelligence report of June 1959, regarding Communist infiltration in Cuba."

Mr. Wieland said, "There is no evidence of Communist infiltration in Cuba."

The testimony is most startling because there can be no doubt that some United States representatives in Cuba and in Washington were supporters of Castro. Theoretically these officials are supposed to follow a pro-American policy but they were more interested in certain men in foreign countries, no matter what effect it had on the United States. It is like Chester Bowles' belief in Nehru. It is particularly notable in this testimony that the United States has intervened and does intervene in the affairs of other countries. Such intervention is denied but it is clear from Hill's testimony that we did intervene.

T. K. writes. Do casts in the urine always mean kidney disease?

REPLY

No. Their significance depends upon the number and other findings, such as red blood cells and albumin.

RED JOINTS

J. S. writes: Why are arthritic joints red?

REPLY

Redness is a sign of inflammation or irritation. This occurs during the acute stages of certain types of arthritis. The involved area is likely to be warm and tender to the touch, as well as painful when moved.

BLADDER CAPACITY

W. A. writes: I read your article about increasing bladder capacity in children. Can an adult bladder be stretched by following the same procedure of holding the urine for longer and longer periods?

REPLY

Yes, but there is no need to torture yourself unless a good reason exists.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

During composer - conductor Igor Stravinsky's first tour of the United States, his command of the English language was sketchy, to say the least.

One day in Milwaukee, the first violinist made the same ghastly mistake three times at a rehearsal. Stravinsky never ceased addressing the miscreant in the most polite terms.

Later a friend complimented him on his control. "How you could speak so politely," he marveled, "when you obviously were seething in rage inside, beats me."

"Ah," explained Stravinsky in his native tongue, "that is because I have learned only polite phrases in English. You should have heard what I was calling the blank-blank under my breath in Russian!"

Kennedy Seems To Favor Ike Over Truman In Dispute About Berlin

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—The friends of ex-President Harry Truman, Democrat, are a bit miffed with President Kennedy, Democrat, for bowing to ex-President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican, over Berlin. They think Kennedy should stick up for his own side a little more.

The famous feud between the two ex-Presidents began over Berlin when Truman, in a speech in San Francisco during the 1952 Presidential campaign, charged that Eisenhower was responsible for leaving Berlin isolated, 110 miles away from West Germany, with no guaranteed right of access. Ike has not spoken to Harry since.

In this feud between two famous ex-Presidents, Kennedy has appeared to side with Eisenhower He has sent Gen. Lucius Clay, Ike's close friend and former subordinate, back to Berlin, though Clay assumed responsibility in his memoirs for failure to get access rights to Berlin. On top of this, Secretary of State Rusk hastened to apologize to Eisenhower when the State Department issued a history of Berlin containing the statement that "the Western armies could have captured Berlin . . . but the supreme commander, Gen. Eisenhower, believed they could be more usefully employed against the major German forces elsewhere. As a result, the Soviets captured Berlin."

In contrast to the Kennedy administration's rush to apologize to Eisenhower, here is what Winston Churchill had to say when Eisenhower diverted American forces away from Berlin in the closing days of the war.

"If we deliberately leave Berlin to them (the Russians)," Churchill wired Eisenhower direct on March 31, 1945, "even if it should be in our grasp, the double event may strengthen their conviction, already apparent, that they have done everything. Further, I do not consider myself that Berlin has yet lost its military and certainly not its political significance."

Eisenhower had previously advised Stalin that he proposed to make the main American thrust along the Erfurt-Leipzig-Dresden line, instead of driving on Berlin. He had ordered U. S. forces when they reached Potsdam, a suburb of Berlin back to the River Elbe.

Republicans who criticized the State Department its implied criticism of Eisenhower in its "Berlin Background" pamphlet, claimed that the Big Three had agreed at Yalta to let the Russians take Berlin. Churchill's emphatic telegrams prove just the opposite.

Ike Switched Plan

Telegraphing President Roosevelt on April 1, Churchill said he had no desire to lower the prestige of Gen. Eisenhower in his relations with the Russian commanders. But, he continued:

"All we sought was a little time to consider the far-reaching changes desired by Gen. Eisenhower in the plans that had been concerted by the Combined Chiefs of Staff at Yalta and had received your and my joint approval. The British Chiefs of Staff were naturally concerned by a procedure which apparently left the fortunes of the British Army, which, though only a third of yours, still amounts to over a million men, to be settled without the slightest reference to Briish authority. They also do not understand from Gen. Eisenhower's message (to Stalin) what was actually intended . . ."

Persistent Churchill

In his April 1 wire to FDR, Churchill went into considerable detail about Eisenhower's switch in plans.

"Gen. Eisenhower, in his estimate of the enemy's resistance, to which I attach the greatest importance, now wishes to shift the axis somewhat to the southward and strike through Leipzig, even perhaps as far South as Dresden. He withdraws the 9th U. S. Army from the northern group of armies . . .

"I say quite frankly that Berlin remains of high strategic importance. Nothing will exert a psychological effect of despair upon all German forces equal to that of the fall of Berlin . . .

"If they (the Russians) also take Berlin, will not their impression that they have been the overwhelming contributor to our common victory be unduly imprinted in their minds, and may not this lead them into a mood which will raise grave and formidable difficulties in the future . . .

"I further consider that from a political standpoint we should march as far east into Germany as possible, and that should Berlin be in our grasp, we should certainly take it."

One day before this, Churchill had sent a telegram to General Ismay, Military Secretary of the British Cabinet: "It seems that Gen. Eisenhower may be wrong in supposing Berlin to be largely devoid of military and political importance. The idea of neglecting Berlin and leaving it to the Russians to take at a later stage does not appear to me to be correct . . ."

Churchill had also sent a telegram to Eisenhower, March 28, '45, complaining that Eisenhower had sent a telegram direct to Stalin changing miiltary strategy "without previously mentioning the subject either to Air Chief Marshal Tedder or to the Combined Chiefs of Staff."

Regarding this Churchill commented: "We all thought that this went beyond the limits of negotiation with the Soviets by the Supreme Commander in Europe."

When the British Prime Minister did not get a satisfactory reply from Roosevelt, he sent him another telegram, April 5.

"It still think it was a pity that Eisenhower's telegram was sent to Stalin without anything being said to our Chiefs of Staff or to our Deputy Air Chief Marshal Tedder, or to our Commander-in-Chief Field Marshal Montgomery," Churchill telegraphed.

Seven days later, Roosevelt was dead. No one was in a position to reverse Eisenhower. And that's how the Russians got to Berlin; also how the Berlin problem, which we are still arguing about, got started.

The FBI's Commercial

By John Crosby

I was listening to the radio the other day and I heard a commercial from F. B. I. Director J. Edgar Hoover which went: "The onslaught of crime is today at an all-time high. Law enforcement is everybody's business. The ever increasing surge of crime costs the American taxpayer 22 billion dollars a year. You are one of the taxpayers sharing this cost. The front line of defense in this matter is your local police officer but he needs the supporting element of you, the citizen, to continue to do his job. Get interested in law enforcement. Support good government. Expect and demand efficient law enforcement and do your part to get it."

Get interested in law enforcement? Mr. Hoover, I am interested in law enforcement. I know that the onslaught of crime is at an all-time high. In fact, crime in this country has made its most substantial gains in the thirty-six years you have been head of the F. B. I. Under your benevolent eye, the crime syndicates are now rolling in wealth and respectability. Gambling, narcotics, and industrial rackets are now among the biggest businesses in this country, and hoodlum money is now infiltrating all sorts of respectable businesses.

Get interested in law enforcement! I am, indeed. But when are you going to get interested in law enforcement, Mr. Hoover? We are the only country in the world with organized crime on such a huge scale and we are one of the few countries without a national police force. Every time someone suggests a national police force for this country, you shoot it down and so well organized is your press relations and so docile is the press at accepting your word on police matters that all attempts to grapple with organized crime on a national level have been successfully throttled. I wonder if the F. B. I. wants the job or wants anyone else to have it for fear of dimming its glory.

"I was seriously concerned with organized crime before I took office," said Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy last April. "In the past two and a half months, I have become even more aware of how far racketeering has infiltrated our society. Racketeers have moved in from illegal enterprises to infect legitimate businesses, labor unions, and — as the newspapers noted again recently — sports. At the same time, the racketeers have tightened their hold on bookmaking, narcotics, extortion, prostitution, the numbers game, and other gambling."

Meanwhile, what were you up to, Mr. Hoover? A perusal of newspaper reports shows that you issued a stirring warning to housewives to be careful of babysitters. You also called for a relentless compaign against child molesters. I also have here your coloring cartoon ("Boys and girls —Color the picture and memorize the rules. Turn down gifts from strangers. Avoid dark and lonely streets. Know your local policeman. J. Edgar Hoover"). You called for a crackdown on "smut salesmen."

You warned the nation's shopkeepers, as you do every year, to beware of shoplifters. You proposed a new name for juvenile delinquents ("teenage brigands"). You deplored violence on television.

The number of arrests made by the F.B.I. in light of its $127,216,000 budget and in light of its own massive crime figures is rather modest. Only 10,000 last year. Hay many big shots of organized crime has the F. B. I. arrested in the last five or ten years? Are they looking for any? Has the F. B. I. any program for trapping any of those well-organized and enormously rich racketeers Mr. Kennedy talks about?

Visitors to F. B. I. headquarters are shown how the F. B. I. tracked down and slaughtered John Dililnger. A great crime epic all right, Mr. H., but it took place 27 years ago. The F. B. I. leaps into action with great speed at kidnappings. And, of course, it keeps the Communists in check. Or says it does.

But, Mr. Hoover, you ask me to expect and demand efficient law enforcement. Of whom? If you're afraid to tackle the crime syndicate, do you think my local police officer supported by me, the citizen, can do it? Nowhere in the world is crime more profitable, better organized, or less bothered by law enforcement than in the United States and you have been the top cop in this country for thirty-six years. Crime has flourished under you as it has never before flourished in the history of the world.

How do you explain that?

Baby Food Can Help In Preparing Adult Meals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baby food eases the preparation of many dishes for adult meals.

The smooth consistency saves time in pureeing vegetables; bland seasoning provides an ideal base for adding any flavors you fancy; and you also increase nutritional content.

Here from the nutrition division of a baby food manufacturer, Beech Nut, are suggested recipes.

— Puree mongole, a fancy soup, can be made in only 15 minutes. In a saucepan, combine 2 (4½ ounce) jars of strained peas, 1 tablespoon of tomato paste, 2 (4½ ounce) jars of chicken broth, ½ cup of medium cream, 1 teaspoon of curry powder, and salt and pepper to taste. Mix well. Simmer 15 minutes on low heat. Add 2 tablespoons of dry sherry just before serving. Garnish with buttered croutons. Serves 4.

— Quick and easy curry sauce stretches 2 cups of leftover cooked chicken or lamb into 4 servings. Saute 1 small onion, finely chopped, in 1 tablespoon of butter until transparent. Add 2 tablespoons of curry powder, ½ teaspoon of ground ginger, and salt and pepper to taste. Continue to saute 3 to 5 minutes to bring out the curry flavor.

Stir in 2 (4½ ounce) jars of strained chicked soup and 1 (7½ ounce) jar of junior applesauce. Mix well. Warm slowly over low heat. Add 1 tablespoon of dry white wine and 2 cups of diced cooked chicken or lamb. Heat to serving temperature. Serve over rice with side dishes of chopped nuts, chopped green pepper, shredded coconut and chutney for garnishes.

— Make jellied carrot salad without grating carrots. Dissolve 1 (3 ounce) package of lemon flavor gelatin in ¾ cup of boiling water. Add ¾ cup of cold water, 1 tablespoon of vinegar, and 1 teaspoon of salt. Chill until syrupy. Add 1 (7½ ounce) jar of junior carrots. Mix well. Pour into a 2½ cup mold rinsed with cold water. Chill until set. Unmold and serve with sour cream dressing dusted with dill. Serves 4.

— Enrich canned gravy by adding carrots. First, saute 1 medium onion, finely chopped, in 1 tablespoon of butter until soft. Add 1 (7½ ounce) jar of junior carrots and 1 (10¾ ounce) can of beef gravy. Mix well. Add ½ teaspoon of salt, a pinch of thyme, and 1 tablespoon of dry red wine. Simmer over low heat to blend flavors. Serve over cold sliced beef, or dice cooked beef into gravy and serve over noodles. Serves 4.

Minute Tidbits

You'll need round slices of bologna, cotto salami or minced roll. Cut meat slices in half, spread with softened chive cream cheese. Roll them into cornucopia shapes, secure with toothpicks.

Oh, stack alternating slices of ham sausage, American cheese and bologna slices. Cut the stacks in triangular or square shapes, fasten with a toothpick.

Pop these morsels into the refrigerator to chill until serving time, then impale them on a cabbage head for fun.

Baby Food Can Help In Preparing Adult Meals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baby food eases the preparation of many dishes for adult meals.

The smooth consistency saves time in pureeing vegetables; bland seasoning provides an ideal base for adding any flavors you fancy; and you also increase nutritional content.

Here from the nutrition division of a baby food manufacturer, Beech Nut, are suggested recipes.

— Puree mongole, a fancy soup, can be made in only 15 minutes. In a saucepan, combine 2 (4½ ounce) jars of strained peas, 1 tablespoon of tomato paste, 2 (4½ ounce) jars of chicken broth, ½ cup of medium cream, 1 teaspoon of curry powder, and salt and pepper to taste. Mix well. Simmer 15 minutes on low heat. Add 2 tablespoons of dry sherry just before serving. Garnish with buttered croutons. Serves 4.

— Quick and easy curry sauce stretches 2 cups of leftover cooked chicken or lamb into 4 servings. Saute 1 small onion, finely chopped, in 1 tablespoon of butter until transparent. Add 2 tablespoons of curry powder, ½ teaspoon of ground ginger, and salt and pepper to taste. Continue to saute 3 to 5 minutes to bring out the curry flavor.

Stir in 2 (4½ ounce) jars of strained chicked soup and 1 (7½ ounce) jar of junior applesauce. Mix well. Warm slowly over low heat. Add 1 tablespoon of dry white wine and 2 cups of diced cooked chicken or lamb. Heat to serving temperature. Serve over rice with side dishes of chopped nuts, chopped green pepper, shredded coconut and chutney for garnishes.

— Make jellied carrot salad without grating carrots. Dissolve 1 (3 ounce) package of lemon flavor gelatin in ¾ cup of boiling water. Add ¾ cup of cold water, 1 tablespoon of vinegar, and 1 teaspoon of salt. Chill until syrupy. Add 1 (7½ ounce) jar of junior carrots. Mix well. Pour into a 2½ cup mold rinsed with cold water. Chill until set. Unmold and serve with sour cream dressing dusted with dill. Serves 4.

— Enrich canned gravy by adding carrots. First, saute 1 medium onion, finely chopped, in 1 tablespoon of butter until soft. Add 1 (7½ ounce) jar of junior carrots and 1 (10¾ ounce) can of beef gravy. Mix well. Add ½ teaspoon of salt, a pinch of thyme, and 1 tablespoon of dry red wine. Simmer over low heat to blend flavors. Serve over cold sliced beef, or dice cooked beef into gravy and serve over noodles. Serves 4.

Chestnuts Add Gourmet Tang To Vegetables

Green beans, a favorite company vegetable whether they are frozen, canned or fresh, assume even greater aims when prepared with a tangy sauce. A good example is sour cream sauce with water chestnuts.

Water chestnuts for years were an important part of Chinese cuisine. Today, however, they are contributing good things to purely American dishes such as this vegetable topping.

A five-ounce can of drained water chestnuts is all that is needed, to lend subtle flavor and crunch to the following sauce for green beans. It's excellent on other vegetables too of course.

Green Beans with Water Chestnuts in Sour Cream
(Four servings)

Cook 1 cup drained water chestnuts in 3 tablespoons butter for 3 minutes. Cook 3 cups french style frozen green beans until barely tender. Drain. Stir in ⅛ cup dairy sour cream and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add water chestnuts and heat vegetables through over very low heat. Serve at once.

FOR CAMPERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Campers who like to travel lightly will find new freeze-dried foods a great help. Packaged in airtight envelopes, these foods need no refrigeration before preparing. They weigh 16 to 33 per cent of the original weight and can be reconstituted and cooked in 5 to 30 minutes.

The initial line includes beef steak, boneless pork chops, ham patty mix, open hearth beef stew, chicken stew, rice and chicken dinner and cooked scrambled eggs. Texture and natural flavor are good, but the beef stew is so blandly seasoned that some cooks may prefer to pep it up with spices or worcestershire sauce. Available in sports goods stores, outdoor sections of department stores and by direct mail.

Salisbury Steaks In Wine

Salisbury Steaks with Wine Sauce is a new variation of an oldtime favorite. Ground beef is combined with ground pork and rolled oats to make juicy Salisbury Steaks with a mushroom wine sauce for additional flavor.

For maximum tenderness, handle with a light touch when mixing. Rolled oats speed up the preparation of this recipe. They are ready to use just as they come from the package, no additional preparation is needed. In addition to convenience, rolled oats make contributions of protein, B vitamins, and minerals.

Salisbury Steaks in Wine Sauce

- 1½ pounds ground beef
- ½ pound ground pork
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 cup rolled oats, quick or regular
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 cup milk or tomato juice
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup water
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- ½ cup sherry
- 1 can (4 ounce) mushroom caps and pieces

Combine meats, onion, rolled oats, salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce, and milk or tomato juice. Mix well. Divide into 8 portions oval patty. Heat fat in large frying pan. Brown patties on both sides in hot fat, turning once (about 15 minutes). Remove meat from pan. Stir flour into meat drippings, add water and bouillon cube, cook until smooth and thickened. Stir in wine and mushrooms. Return meat to fry pan: cover and lower heat. Cook until patties are done, about 15 additional minutes.

True Tamales Have Pork-Beef Centers

The center of a true Mexican tamale is made of equal parts of beef and pork. Some pork is essential to give the filling the rich, juicy flavor that is typical of a tamale.

"Wet Masa," a type of corn flour dough, is used to prepare the cereal jacket that covers the filling. It is similar to the dough used in making Mexican tortillas, the source of the bread of Mexico for centuries.

Pork Roast Tip

Pour a few drops of Brown Gravy Sauce on pork roast or chops while they are cooking.

It gives them a richer, golden brown color and a crispy sweet crust. This inexpensive molasses-type product will improve meat stock soups, hash and stew, as well.

Week's Food Economies

October has been designated as "Eggtober" to call to the attention of consumers the supply of top quality eggs for their selection, says Virginia McLuckie, food economist, at the Baltimore Office of the University of Maryland Department of Markets.

The small size egg is the economy size at this time of the year. Many hens hatched in the spring have reached laying age and the first eggs they lay are small. Gradually size increases to medium and then large or extra large. This accounts for the seasonal supply advance of small and medium size eggs. The supply of medium size eggs is greater in the markets than other sizes however, there is a generous supply of small eggs.

Remember the eight cent rule of thumb when buying eggs. When the difference in cost is more than eight cents between medium and large or fifteen cents between larg and small size the smaller size gives you more eggs for your money. Actually you buy eggs according to weight when you buy eggs, in cartons, which have been sized and graded. Grades of eggs are A, B, and C. These are determined by a candling process. Grade A eggs are the only ones that can be sold as fresh. Grade B eggs are usable for cooking purposes.

A good guide to follow is to buy eggs that have been kept under refrigeration and keep them in the refrigerator. Treat them right in cooking by using low to moderate temperatures.

There has been a seasonal increase in pork supplies. Other suggested meats are turkey, ham and lamb.

The produce counters are showing a wide variety for your choice. On the best buy list are white potatoes, sweet potatoes, and cabbage. Receipts of broccoli are increasing. There are plenty of the salad vegetables for your choice.

Apples head the list of fruit buys. Look for Grimes Golden apples this week. Grimes' are good for eating out of hand and in sauce and pie. Bartlett pears are in good supply. Seckle pears are available. Tokay grapes are the best grape buy. Bananas offer good value for the cost per pound.

MAIN DISH

NEW YORK (UPI) — Corn meal turnovers make a quick and easy main dish. Sift together ¾ cup of enriched corn meal, 2 cups of sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon of salt and 2 teaspoons of baking powder. Cut in ½ cup of shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in 1 cup of milk. Mix lightly. Turn out on floured board or canvas. Knead gently several times. Divide dough in half.

Roll each portion to a 6-by-18-inch rectangle. Cut each into three 6-inch squares. Cut 1 (1 pound) can of corned beef hash into 6 slices. Place slices on one corner of each turnover. Top with slice of process cheese. Fold dough to form triangle. Seal edges, first moistening with water. Prick surface. Place on cooky sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a preheated 425-degree oven. Serve with spicy tomato sauce. Serves 6.

Many scientists believe the universe is evolving, but in recent years some have suggested that it may be in a steady state of equilibrium that has always existed and will go on through eternity. This theory holds that space as well as time is infinite and that matter is continually being created throughout space.

Handicapped Patients Gain Confidence By Cooking

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — A prescription for ADL calls for a wonder drug that can't be bottled.

"Activities for daily living" is a commonplace prescription at the Hospital for Special Surgery on Manhattan's upper East Side. It works miracles every day in the Ella Grey Memorial Kitchen, presided over by Doris Nichols, an occupational therapist. The activities covered are meal preparation and ordinary household chores such as cleaning and sewing.

Sounds simple. But all Miss Nichols' patients are victims of crippling disorders. Some are handicapped so badly that they're confined to wheel chairs, without the use or with sharply restricted use of one or more limbs.

Some use appliances especially designed for the handicapped; others can work with standard items. Miss Nichols, who insists that "I can't cook anything myself," helps each patient choose and use appliances best suited to her limitations.

She showed me some of them, including a standard design faucet that controls both hot and cold water with the pushing movement of one hand; a plastic strainer for one-handed separation of eggs; and an inch-wide elastic band with a leather pocket of holding spoon handles and other narrow-handled utensils. The band fits snugly around the palm so that a person with no hand grip can feed herself, stir, turn and remove food from pans.

Morale is vastly important, said Miss Nichols. Some patients work in the kitchen for that reason alone. Many long-term patients with families at home visit the kitchen regularly to bake cakes and cookies for their husbands to take to their children. One young married woman who was hospitalized for months learned to make casseroles, pies and cookies. Once accompanied by her nurse, she took some of her dishes home to have supper with her husband.

A patient of European birth lost confidence in her cooking abilities during two years of hospitalization. When asked what she wanted to make, she said, "noodles."

"I've never made them," said Miss Nichols. "Can you show me how?"

With delight, the patient did. She returned the next day to make stew to go with the noodles and went home shortly thereafter—her confidence restored because SHE had taught the teacher.

The salad mix includes ready mixed spices and seasonings, and can be used both for cold salad and hot. VERSATILE SAUCE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sauce amandine is delicious on any vegetable. Cook ¼ cup of almonds in 2 tablespoons of butter until lightly browned. Blend in 1 (10½ ounce) can of condensed cream of mushroom soup, 1-3 cup of water and 1 tablespoon of minced onion. Heat slowly and pour over cooked hot vegteable. Makes 1 2-3 cups.

Refrigerator cookie dough calling for granulated sugar and flavored with vanilla may be varied by omitting the vanilla and adding 1 tablespoon each lemon juice and grated lemon rind.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading about the woman who was afraid of the dark I just had to write. I was in the same boat a few years ago.

The nights my husband had to work I died a thousand deaths. The children sensed my fear and I know I made them afraid, too. One day my husband left us forever — a fatal coronary struck him without warning. I knew I'd have to face every night alone and I'd better learn to be brave.

A wise friend gave me a German shepherd. That dog turned out to be my best friend. I can honestly say that since Machen has become a member of our family I have no fear of the night or the darkness. The answer was so simple I wonder why no one mentioned it before. Please pass this word to other "Fraidy Cats."

—DAILY READER

DEAR DAILY Thanks for your letter. Dozens of "Former Fraidy Cats" have been passing this word to me! A Harrisburg, Pa., reader wrote: "My watchdog is a two-pound Mexican chihuahua. He sounds like a ferocious beast. If a prowler could see the little mosquito who makes all that racket behind the door, he'd blush with shame."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a good man but he has a short temper. He has so many fine qualities that I forgive his little blow-ups.

The woman next door happened to be sitting in our kitchen last evening when George got a little upset because I threw away his old hunting jacket. The neighbor got right into the argument (on my side) and I could have brained her. She made George a lot madder than he would have been if she had just shut up. He finally told her to keep her big nose out of other people's arguments.

The woman left mad. My husband says he can't stand her and if she never comes into our house again he'll be happy. Do you think I owe her an apology?—IDA

DEAR IDA: No. Real friends don't hang around to watch family fights. Your neighbor should have left after the first sign of a rumble. Becoming involved was inexcusable. She earned whatever George said to her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow with three children. Several months ago I met a man who treats me just wonderful. He has asked me to marry him when his divorce becomes final. His wife is stubborn and it may be a while yet, but we've decided not to let that interfere with our happiness.

He has taken me and the children on some very educational trips. He buys them presents and they are fond of him. Every weekend he does odd jobs around the house, just the way a husband would.

For my birthday he gave me a beautiful leather purse and inside was a $50 bill. My oldest daughter says I should not accept it. I do not agree with her. After all, I've had him here for weekends, I've cooked for him and done his laundry. If he wants to give me a few gifts in return I feel I should accept them. Who is right?

—RESPECTABLE

DEAR RESPECTABLE: Your signature doesn't match your story. The man you've been traveling with, cooking for and entertaining in your home weekends is married.

Give the purse back—and the man also—to his wife.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣ Today's disaster was brought about by contributing negligence.

South opened with one heart and North made the jump shift response of two spades. South chose to rebid three hearts, which was his contribution to the eventual misfortune.

There was some merit to North's position; nevertheless, a better choice on his part would have been seven no trump. If he believes that five heart tricks are available, then he is in position to count 13 top card tricks; five hearts, two diamonds (in the absence of a singleton ace in the South hand), three clubs, and three spades.

In other words, if seven hearts can be made, then seven no trump can be made just as easily. The great advantage of the seven no trump call is that if hearts prove not to be solid by reason of a bad break, the partnership has the additional chance that the spade suit might produce five tricks.

South's proper rebid in our view is two no trump. The repetition of hearts tends to describe a good suit, and South's trump holding is not considered very good. It is well to bear in mind that a fifth card does not in itself render a suit rebiddable. It was South's duty on the second round to describe a minimum hand of the balanced type. This he could have accomplished by bidding two no trump. Lack of a club stopper should not bar such action when partner has announced a 19 point hand.

After the heart rebid, North reasonably embarked upon a Blackwood campaign and when he ascertained that South had two aces and a king, he contracted for seven hearts. But when hearts broke unfavorably he had to submit to a one trick set. North contended that in view of South's rebid of hearts he was justified in counting on five tricks in the suit.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.— The beautiful Capucine, and I doubt if anybody will give you an argument that she's about the prettiest gal to ever come to our town, goes to Kenya to join "The Lion" company.

Peter Levathes, Mr. 20th Century-Fox, saw a cut of "Walk on the Wild Side," and he telephoned Capucine, who is in Paris, that he would like her to join Bill Holden, Pamela Franklin, and producer Sam Engel in Africa for the Joseph Kessel story.

This is being filmed at the Kenya Safari Club, far away from the trouble zone in far-away Africa.

There's nothing that so endears a director to the heart of a studio than to bring in a picture ahead of schedule. That's exactly what Morton "Tek" DaCosta did with "Music Man," made at Warner Bros. Furthermore, he made a good picture and he had a honey in "Auntie Mame." So it was natural for Jack Warner to keep Tek right at the studio, and he's now added Tek's independent company Belgrave Enterprises to Warner's.

DaCosta's next is a comedy, which for some reason is being kept a deep dark secret, — I suspect, because it's not yet cleared. Anyhow, Tek's movies in the future will be made for Warners, unless he goes to New York to direct a stage play.

Cornel Wilde and his pretty blonde wife, Jean Alice Wallace, sailed last week for Europe on big business. Cornel is planning to make a spectacular called "Lancelot and Guinevere." Jean will play Guinevere, and Cornel as Lancelot, of course, will also co-produce with Bernard Luper.

The Wildes are the only two Americans in the cast. It will be produced in England, and exteriors will be made in either Spain or Italy. Just before they sailed, Cornel made a deal with Universal-International to release their romantic opus.

There was nostalgia for all those who loved Ethel Barrymore, in the collection of letters and photographs displayed in George Cukor's gardens at the cocktail party he gave honoring Dr. and Mrs. Norman Topping of U.S.C. This Ethel Barrymore Memorabilia will be added to the collections to be shown at the university's library of cinema and theatre.

There was a Sargent drawing of Ethel. I have a Sargent drawing of John, which I bought from Lionel's estate. Ethel's son, Sammy Colt, gave many of his treasures, and still expects to give more.

Sorry I missed Dorothy Parker whom I like so much. She left with Alan Campbell before I arrived. I also missed the Alfred Hitchcocks. I did see many of the stars I saw at the Bill Orr birthday party the night before. Talked with Shelley Winters, who came with Ty Hardin. She said her battle with Orry Kelly is all over and everything's fine. "Nothing's as cold as yesterday's quarrel," said Shelley.

Alan J. Lerner will be here in about ten days to discuss "Camelot" with Jack Warner. Talked with Jack at the William Orr birthday party, and he said he had not yet bought "My Fair it. He had offered $5,500,000—and he thought that even paying that was money in the bank, because of the beautiful music. I was glad to hear him say that musicals are going to be more popular this coming year.

Jack achieved a lot of stature with the speech he made at the American Legion Convention against communism. I spoke to him about it, and he said he was going to send me the entire speech. I also had a letter from Martin McKnelly, telling me how well Jack's speech went with the legionnaires.

Snapshots of Hollwyood collected at random:

Socially speaking: Joy (Mrs. William) Orr's Birthday party for Bill at the Penthouse of Romanoff's was to have been a surprise, but it leaked out. No one had more fun than Bill, and Joy was charming hostess.

Nice to see Bill's young looking mother again, having the time of her life — she danced every dance. I sat at a table with his attractive sister Maury, who was surrounded by male admirers. She was a very little girl when Bill first went on tour with my young stars—and now that he's production head of Warner's Studio, doesn't look much older.

Met a very attractive new girl in town, Alicia Townsend who came with Jule Styne. Jule, Jimmy McHugh, and Sammy Cahn had their heads together, no doubt composing a new tune.

Maria Cooper was escorted by Cliff Robertson, who's still wearing his neck in a brace. He said, "You'll pardon my not wearing a tie." Shirley Jones said she might have twins—she'll get the verdict this week. She's gained pounds, but nothing can interfere with her beauty. Her goodlooking husband Jack Cassidy heads for New York soon to discuss a play.

Dick Zanuck, now a part of the Warner fold, danced with only one girl all evening—his pretty wife.

Russell Nype is out of Dick's picture "The Chapman Report" because he photographs too young to be Glynis Johns' husband. Saw Glynis at the party with Jerry Davis, Marilyn Maxwell's ex, and they are certainly devoted.

No one was having more fun than George Hamilton who was trying to persuade Maria Cooper to go to Rome. Rocky (Mrs. Cooper) tells me that she and Maria have been toying with the idea of taking some photographs on the "Cleopatra" set. She wants a project. They had intended to go to Lebanon and Egypt, but with all the trouble there now, they've decided against it.

Lee Patterson sat next to me. He's in "Surfside 6" at Warners. This is one party where there were more men than women.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Rocky (Mrs. Cooper) tells me that she and Maria have been toying with the idea of taking some photographs on the "Cleopatra" set. She wants a project. They had intended to go to Lebanon and Egypt, but with all the trouble there now, they've decided against it.

Lee Patterson sat next to me. He's in "Surfside 6" at Warners. This is one party where there were more men than women.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Arrangements for visits may be made by calling the plant, PA 2-2000, Extension 4, during the above hours.

Forty per cent of the land in the United States and 35 per cent of its natural resources are in the west, yet only 14 per cent of the people live there.

The caribou, staple diet of the Eskimo, is disappearing like the bison.

Good Weather Seen Today For Forest Festival

ELKINS, W. Va. (UPI) — An almost ideal opening appeared in the offing for the 25th annual Mountain State Forest Festival here Thursday.

Sunny, cool weather was predicted and as a result of two consecutive nights of freezing temperatures, the tree - covered hills began taking on more of their colorful fall colors.

To add to the first day's color will be a football game Thursday night between Elkins and Clarksburg Roosevelt - Wilson. It was moved up from Friday to avoid conflict with the annual firemen's parade.

Miss Bess will be crowned in a ceremony Friday at 2 p.m. by Gov. W. W. Barron.

The "grand feature" parade Saturday will include at least 50 bands and about as many floats. It is expected to last three hours.

Thursday and Friday activities will include various contests, including wood - chopping, muzzle-loading rifle-firing and jousting.

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford spun his southpaw magic over the Cincinnati Reds with a 2-hit 2-0 opening game victory for the New York Yankees Wednesday and set a World Series record with eight victories.

Once again the Yanks, who hit 240 homers in the regular season, fell back on their familiar weapon with home runs by Elston Howard and Bill Skowron and broke the back of the National League champions.

Jim O'Toole, 24-year-old Cincinnati left-hander, hadn't allowed a home run since July 28 in 16 regular season games. But Howard curled one into the lower right field seats in the fourth and Skowron boomed a 420-footer into the lower stands in left in the sixth.

Sensational fielding by third baseman Clete Boyer eased Ford's path as he ran his string of consecutive scoreless innings to 27 over a two-year span.

Boyer thrilled a chilly crowd of 62,387 with a brilliant stop of pinch hitter Dick Gernert's smash in the eighth. Throwing himself into the dirt as he dived to his left, Boyer gloved the ball. Then he threw out Gernert from his knees. In the second inning Boyer made another difficult stop and perfect throw from his knees, nipping Gene Freese.

Mantle Doesn't Play

The Yanks did this without help from the M & M boys. Mickey Mantle was not in the lineup, still hobbled by the effects of minor surgery on an abscess on his right hip. Roger Maris, whose 61 homers set a record, failed to hit the ball out of the infield on four trips, striking out once.

Ford simply was superb on this gray day, spiking the big guns of the Reds' attack, Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson.

Eddie Kasko singled into left field with one out in the first inning and Wally Post lined a single into the left field corner in the fifth. The 32-year-old lefty from Lake Success, N.Y., walked only one man, Robinson in the seventh, and struck out six. The strikeouts boosted his own series record to 69.

Red Ruffing and Allie Reynolds, a couple of Yanks of former days, each had won seven series games but Ford's brilliant effort made him the top winner of all time in his 15th start.

Only Babe Ruth with 29 2-3 scoreless innings and Christy Mathewson with 28 1-3 (He pitched three shutouts in 1905) have blanked the opposition for as many consecutive innings.

Terry vs. Jay

Ralph Terry, a 25-year-old right-hander who will be remembered as the fellow who threw the series-deciding home run ball to Bill Mazeroski in Pittsburgh last October, will pitch for the Yanks in Thursday's second game. He had a 16-3 record and pitched the pennant clincher.

Joey Jay, a 26-year-old right-hander acquired from Milwaukee last winter, will pitch for Cincinnati. Joey had a 21-10 season for the Reds.

Manager Ralph Houk said he would use Johnny Blanchard in right field Thursday against Jay if Mantle, still a doubtful starter, is unable to play.

The Yanks had O'Toole on the ropes in the first when they loaded the bases on Bobby Richardson's first of three singles and walks to Toney Kubek and Skowron. Yogi Berra popped up for the third out.

Howard, a .348 hitter for the season, hit a 1-1 pitch into the lower seats in right leading off the fourth.

Skowron's blast was a homer all the way. It came off an O'Toole curve ball and drilled its way into the eighth row of the lower stands in left. It was his seventh in World Series play. Howard's was his fifth.

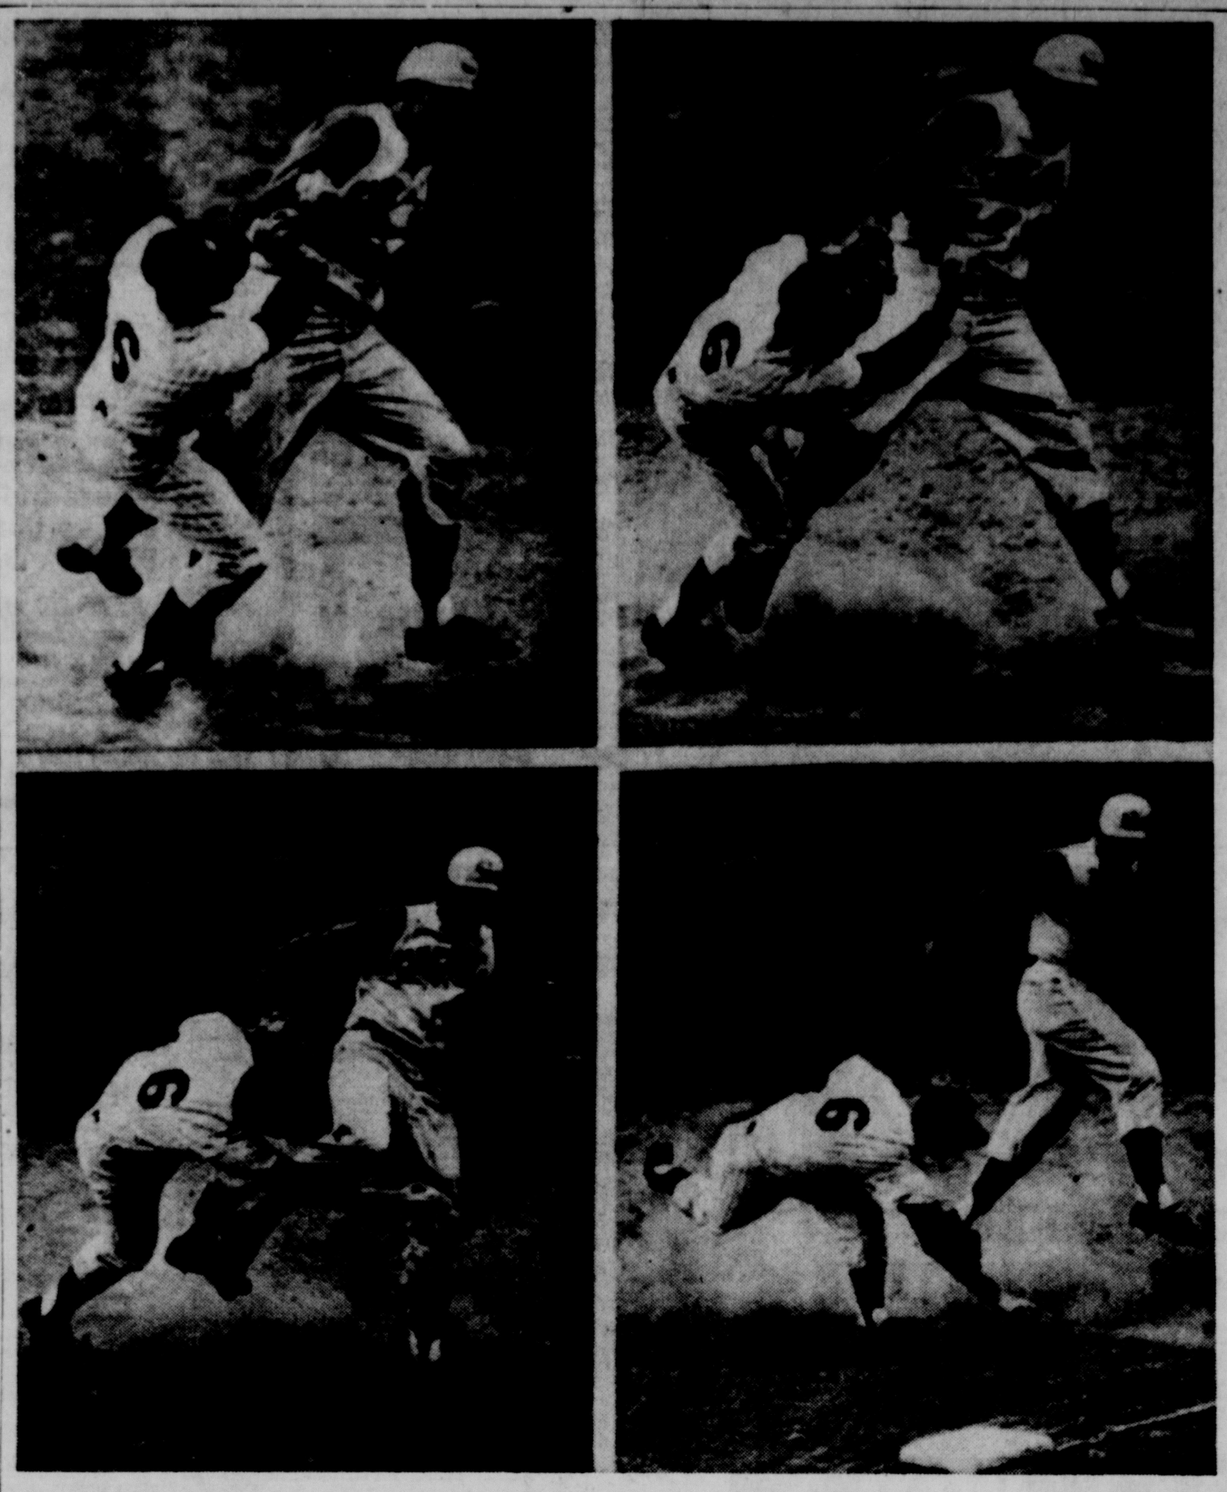
Reds Field Well

Cincinnati also showed flashes of fine fielding with a leaping stab by shortstop Eddie Kasko on Ford's liner in the fourth. Vada Pinson got a late start on Howard's deep fly but still caught it in the sixth and he raced into the far reaches of left center to drag down Boyer's drive in that same inning.

Berra set a series record every time he stepped out of the dugout, for this was his 12th series and his 69th game, most of them as a catcher.

There was only one semblance of a rhubarb. That came in the fifth when Boyer fielded Darrell Johnson's grounder and instead of throwing to first elected to tag out Post, coming toward third from second. Post crashed into Boyer with a football-type arm and shoulder block and knocked Boyer off balance. The fans booed but the Yanks merely trotted off the field.

The victory was the Yanks' 66th to only 16 defeats in their home park this year.



COLLISION AT THIRD—Cincinnati Reds' Wally Post crashes into New York Yankee third baseman Cletis Boyer in the fifth inning at Yankee Stadium in the first game of the World Series yesterday. Post, on second base, started to third when Reds' batter Darrell Johnson rolled a ball to Boyer. The Yankee third sacker made the tag on Post, who came crashing into Boyer who went sprawling but hung on to the ball. New York won the series opener from Cincinnati, 2-0. (AP Photofax)

Whitey Ford Blanks Cincinnati, 2-0, In Series Opener

Two Yankee Homers Win First Game

Howard, Skowron Hit For Circuit; Boyer Thrills Fans

Salem Records Offense Mark Against Cats

Tigers Hold Big Lead In Totals

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — A record spree against Potomac last Saturday vaulted Salem into a handsome total offense lead in the West Virginia Conference.

League secretary George Soringer disclosed Wednesday that the 609 yards piled up by the Tigers in a 25-0 win exceeded all conference records. Salem got 250 yards rushing and a massive 359 yards passing, on the throwing of Billy Connors.

Salem now has averaged 427 yards on offense, 105 yards more than second-place Wesleyan. The aerial barrage also moved the Tigers on top in that department with an average of 164.9 yards, with Potomac, ironically, second with 153.3 yards.

Wesleyan remained first in rushing offense with an average of 269.5 yards followed by Salem with 243.3.

Wesleyan, only unbeaten team in the league, and once-beaten Salem play Saturday night in Clarksburg.

Davis & Elkins moved into first place in total defense with a prevention average of 149 yards. Bluefield, second in total defense with a mark of 153, is first in rushing defense with a 76.5-yard average.

Shepherd leads in pass defense with a brilliant 10-yard average. West Liberty is second in rushing with 97 yards and D&E is second in pass prevention with 69 yards a game.

Favorites Falling Fast, But Snider Backs Power

Michigan, Georgia Tech, Irish And Syracuse Selected

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Who's next?

The favorites are falling faster than autumn leaves in this infant college football season but you still have to go with the power boys and this week that means Iowa, Georgia Tech, Texas Christian and Michigan.

Thus, it's Iowa over Southern California, Georgia Tech over LSU, Texas Christian over Arkansas and Michigan over Army in four of the big ones.

Around the nation it shapes up this way:

EAST

Penn State over Boston U.—Rebound for Nittany Lions; edge all around.

Columbia over Princeton — Columbia veterans top young Princetons.

Dartmouth over Pennsylvania—It didn't figure a week ago.

Also: Yale over Brown, Cornell over Harvard, Villanova over Massachusetts, Bucknell over Colgate, Holy Cross over Buffalo, Lehigh over Gettysburg, Temple over Muhlenberg, Rutgers over Connecticut.

MIDWEST

Michigan over Army—Probably too much depth for Cadets.

Michigan State over Stanford—End of Stanford surprises.

Notre Dame over Purdue—Another flier on the Irish.

Missouri over California — Makes it 0-3 for Cal.

Also: Northwestern over Illinois, Wisconsin over Indiana, Minnesota over Oregon, Ohio State over UCLA, Kansas State over Nebraska, Kansas over Colorado, Oklahoma over Iowa State, Cincinnati over Xavier, Kent State over Miami of Ohio.

SOUTH

Georgia Tech over Louisiana State—Stan Gann and a big line.

Syracuse over Maryland — Orange must perk up, though.

Miami over Navy — Navy will be better later.

Auburn over Kentucky — Lotta muscles down there.

Also: Alabama over Vanderbilt, North Carolina over Clemson, Duke over Wake Forest, Florida over Tulane, Georgia over South Carolina, Mississippi over Florida State, Tennessee over Mississippi State, North Carolina State over Virginia, VMI over George Washington, Furman over William and Mary, Richmond over The Citadel, Virginia Tech over West Virginia, Mississippi Southern over Chattanooga.

SOUTHWEST

Texas Christian over Arkansas —Frogs a happy surprise.

Texas over Washington State—Easy.

Southern Methodist over Air Force—Mustangs are better organized.

Also: Texas A&M over Texas Tech, Oklahoma State over Tulsa, Houston over Boston College, Arizona over Hardin-Simmons, Utah over Arizona State, Texas Western over New Mexico, Wichita over West Texas State.

FAR WEST

Iowa over Southern California —Hollis and mates have too much zip.

Pittsburgh over Washington — Tough but Pitt can pass.

Also: Oregon State over Idaho, Fresno over Pacific, San Jose State over Colorado State. Rockies: Wyoming over Utah State, Montana over Brigham Young.

Seroual Cops Rolling Rock Cup

LIGONIER, Pa. (UPI)—Seroual, a jumper owned by William C. Robinson Jr. of Sewickley, Pa., won the Rolling Rock Hunt Cup Wednesday in the feature event at the 24th annual Rolling Rock races.

Ridden by Joe Aicheson, Seroual set a Hunt Cup record by covering the two mile steeplechase course in four minutes and 10 seconds. Sir Patsy threatened Seroual in the stretch but had to settle for second place, while Amber Diver finished third.

Series In Library

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Even patrons of the Syracuse Public Library watched the World Series Wednesday. The library installed a television set in its normally low-toned circulation department.

Sangster Faces Tennis Inquiry

Called On Carpet For His Statements

LONDON (UPI) — British tennis star Mike Sangster goes on the carpet before the Lawn Tennis Association bosses Thursday to "explain" his criticism of them in an Australian magazine — and suspension could be the penalty for the wrong answers.

Sangster, 21, in an interview with a reporter for the magazine "Sport", was alleged to have objected to letters from the LTA to him starting "Dear Sangster" and to many committee members who "seek only free tickets and whisky."

But officials here were most pained by references he made to the selectors' failure to recommend young players for experience overseas.

According to Wednesday's Daily Sketch "The chairman wants a personal explanation. Feeling at tennis headquarters is: we don't care if it's true, or half - true. Even if the things he is reported to have said are quarter true, they are bad enough to cause serious trouble. That could mean suspension."

HOW TO CUT HEAT COSTS:

6 tips that can help you get more warmth from your heating oil dollars

YOUR Shell Heating Oil supplier recommends these 6 ways to reduce heating costs and have a more comfortable home:

1. Keep your oil burner clean. Today's Shell Heating Oil contains special additive FOA-5X.® It helps keep critical burner parts free from clogging—assures better firing.

2. Guard against tank rust. Shell Sonitor® anti-rust treatment helps protect your storage tank for one full year, at no extra cost.

3. Check your thermostat location. If your thermostat is in a stairwell, on an outside wall or near an outside entrance—it may cause your burner to operate more often than necessary.

4. Shut off radiators or registers in rooms that aren't in regular use.

5. When fireplaces are not in use, make sure dampers are securely shut.

6. Keep attic ventilators closed during the heating season.

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — A record spree against Potomac last Saturday vaulted Salem into a handsome total offense lead in the West Virginia Conference.

League secretary George Soringer disclosed Wednesday that the 609 yards piled up by the Tigers in a 25-0 win exceeded all conference records. Salem got 250 yards rushing and a massive 359 yards passing, on the throwing of Billy Connors.

Salem now has averaged 427 yards on offense, 105 yards more than second-place Wesleyan. The aerial barrage also moved the Tigers on top in that department with an average of 164.9 yards, with Potomac, ironically, second with 153.3 yards.

Wesleyan remained first in rushing offense with an average of 269.5 yards followed by Salem with 243.3.

Wesleyan, only unbeaten team in the league, and once-beaten Salem play Saturday night in Clarksburg.

Davis & Elkins moved into first place in total defense with a prevention average of 149 yards. Bluefield, second in total defense with a mark of 153, is first in rushing defense with a 76.5-yard average.

Shepherd leads in pass defense with a brilliant 10-yard average. West Liberty is second in rushing with 97 yards and D&E is second in pass prevention with 69 yards a game.

Michigan, Georgia Tech, Irish And Syracuse Selected

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Who's next?

The favorites are falling faster than autumn leaves in this infant college football season but you still have to go with the power boys and this week that means Iowa, Georgia Tech, Texas Christian and Michigan.

Thus, it's Iowa over Southern California, Georgia Tech over LSU, Texas Christian over Arkansas and Michigan over Army in four of the big ones.

Around the nation it shapes up this way:

Also: Northwestern over Illinois, Wisconsin over Indiana, Minnesota over Oregon, Ohio State over UCLA, Kansas State over Nebraska, Kansas over Colorado, Oklahoma over Iowa State, Cincinnati over Xavier, Kent State over Miami of Ohio.

SOUTH

Georgia Tech over Louisiana State—Stan Gann and a big line.

FAR WEST

Seroual Cops Rolling Rock Cup

LIGONIER, Pa. (UPI)—Seroual, a jumper owned by William C. Robinson Jr. of Sewickley, Pa., won the Rolling Rock Hunt Cup Wednesday in the feature event at the 24th annual Rolling Rock races.

Ridden by Joe Aicheson, Seroual set a Hunt Cup record by covering the two mile steeplechase course in four minutes and 10 seconds. Sir Patsy threatened Seroual in the stretch but had to settle for second place, while Amber Diver finished third.

Series In Library

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Even patrons of the Syracuse Public Library watched the World Series Wednesday. The library installed a television set in its normally low-toned circulation department.

Sangster Faces Tennis Inquiry

Called On Carpet For His Statements

LONDON (UPI) — British tennis star Mike Sangster goes on the carpet before the Lawn Tennis Association bosses Thursday to "explain" his criticism of them in an Australian magazine — and suspension could be the penalty for the wrong answers.

Sangster, 21, in an interview with a reporter for the magazine "Sport", was alleged to have objected to letters from the LTA to him starting "Dear Sangster" and to many committee members who "seek only free tickets and whisky."

But officials here were most pained by references he made to the selectors' failure to recommend young players for experience overseas.

According to Wednesday's Daily Sketch "The chairman wants a personal explanation. Feeling at tennis headquarters is: we don't care if it's true, or half - true. Even if the things he is reported to have said are quarter true, they are bad enough to cause serious trouble. That could mean suspension."

W. Va. To Put New Limit On Trout Catches

Angler May Have 16 In Possession

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A new regulation replacing the old West Virginia season limit on fish catches with a "possession limit" will go into effect next year.

Natural Resources Director Warden M. Lane said Wednesday that beginning in 1962 an angler may legally have only 16 trout or bass in his possession at one time — including what he has in his camp ice box and those he catches on a given day.

The season limit this year is 60 in each category. The daily limit next season will be eight, same as this year. The trout season will open April 28 and run through Dec. 31.

Lane pulled back late Wednesday another new regulation to require that so-called drop lines be attended at all times. A spokesman said that after certain questions were raised that the regulation needed further study and would not go into effect next year as planned.

That regulation mentioned that lines tied to tree branches or poles, stuck in the ground, and allowed to dangle in the water had to be watched at all times. This meant that a fisherman could not set up a string of lines and leave them until later checks.

The question was raised as to whether this would apply to "trout lines" — where a line is across streams, with several lines dropping from it into the water. The proposed regulation did not specifically read that way and due to this and other possible misinterpreations, Lane decided to discard it.

The 1962 frog - gigging season will run from June 16 to July 31, and the new possession limit will apply here with a limit of 20. The nightly limit will be the same as this year, 10.

The new club will have a working agreement with the Cleveland Indians.

Chaney Scores Only Goal In W.M.I. Opener

Forward John Chaney booted home the game's only tally from a scramble in front of the goal posts midway in the second period yesterday as Beall High's Mountaineers opened defense of their Western Maryland Interscholastic Soccer League championship with a 1-0 triumph over the Flintstone High Aggies at Frostburg.

The game, postponed from Tuesday because of rain, was the season's opener for both teams and resulted in a strong defensive battle.

Outstanding players for Coach Ebbie Finzel's Mountaineers were goalie Charles Gray, fullbacks Allan Eisel and Bill Petenbrink and forwards Wayne Wharton and Chaney. Best bets for Flintstone, coached by Orville "Stony" Jackson, were goalie Ron Stafford, fullbacks Dave Kennedy and Don Smith and halfbacks Larry Haines and Don Kinton.

Ruth Marks Still Under Yank Attack

Ford Near Series Shutout Record

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the year for the attack on the records of the mighty Babe Ruth. But the man who threatened the Babe Wednesday did it with his stout left arm and not with his bat.

Whitey Ford, ace of the New York Yankee pitching staff, spun his third consecutive World Series shutout which adds up to 27 scoreless innings — and in the words of Manager Ralph Houk it "was as nice a one as he has pitched all year."

"I did it with a sinker, a fast ball, a slider, and some cruves," Ford said. "I didn't have a good change of pace."

Ruth's record, back when he pitched for the Boston Red Sox in the 1916 and 1918 World Series, is 29 2-3 scoreless innings. Ford will get a solid chance to beat this when the series moves to Cincinnati this weekend.

Roger Maris, who came within one home run of matching Ruth's 154-game record of 60, but wound up with 61 in the American League's expanded 1961 162-game schedule, went hitless in four at bats. He never hit a ball out of the infield and struck out once.

But Ford, all grins and his blond hair rumpled from sweat, was the center of attraction in the Yankees' dressing room.

"Someone told me about Ruth's pitching record before the game," he said. "But it wasn't on my mind. All I wanted to do was win."

"It's always good to win the first one," said Houk. "Ford's the guy who did it, and of course those homers (by Moose Skowron and Elston Howard) helped.

"And you'd have to say Clete Boyer played a lot of third. That was a heck of a play he made on Dick Gernert in the eighth."

And what did the Yankee manager think of the Cincinnati Reds?

"They must have a good club," he said. "They were in the game all the way. They were facing a good pitcher. Of course we were too, but we hit harder than they did."

Skowron said his homer was made off one of Jim O'Toole's high curves—"And I swung an easy swing."

Clete Boyer said his play on Gernert "was the best I ever made." He also trapped a hard smash in the second and threw out Gene Freese.

Good, Clean Incision Says Hutch

Post Missed First Home Run By Foot

By HAROLD HARRISON

NEW YORK (AP) — "That's what you would call a good, clean incision."

That was Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson's description of the New York Yankees' 2-0 victory over the Reds Wednesday in the opener of the 1961 World Series.

"There's not a helluva lot you can say about that game," the grim-faced Hutchinson said in the subdued Redleg club house.

"You have to give Mr. (Whitey) Ford a lot of credit. He pitched a fine game but our kid (Jim O'Toole) did, too. The only thing he (O'Toole) could have done was shut them out."

The Yankees' first run off O'Toole was Elston Howard's homer in the fourth which barely dropped into the right field seats.

It appeared for a bit that Cincinnati right fielder Wally Post might have made a catch, or might have gotten a glove on the ball.

Post said, however, his stab for the ball was about a foot or two short. The ball dropped into the first row of seats.

"I thought I had a chance for it," Post said, "but it kept drifting away."

Hutchinson merely shook his head and said, "I don't know" when he was asked if he believed the faster Frank Robinson might have made the catch. Robinson usually plays in right field but was shifted to left.

"I was trying too hard to pitch to spots."

O'Toole, always a confindent youngster, showed no signs of being depressed by the defeat. In fact he declared he'd be more relaxed the next time out.

Hutchinson reiterated that Joey Jay would be his starting hurler in Thursday's second game. He said the only possible change in the lineup might be to move first baseman Gordon Coleman up to the fifth spot in the hitting order. Coleman batted seventh Wednesday against the left-handed pitching of Ford.

Navy Sees Top Foe In Miami

Play In Orange Bowl On Friday

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Navy expects a tough football game when the Middies meet Miami and their talented M-M boys in the Orange Bowl Friday night.

"We thought Penn State was good and Miami beat them handily so I don't know what that makes Miami," Coach Wayne Hardin told a press conference Wednesday. The Middies dropped their opener to Penn State 20-10 and the Hurricanes whipped the Nittany Lions 25-8 last week.

Hardin and chief scout Steve Belichick were especially high on the Hurricanes' M-M boys — quarterback George Mira and end Bill Miller.

Mira, a 5-11 and 176 pounds, is fourth in the nation in total offense (394 yards), according to the latest collegiate statistics.

Miller has taken 12 passes for 172 yards and one touchdown.

Hardin said he didn't plan any drastic overhaul of Navy's secondary to cope with the airborne threat of the M-M boys.

Miami coach Andy Gustafson told the press conference in a telephone interview that he also expects a lot of passing from the Middies and their junior quarterback Ron Klemick, who clicked for two touchdowns through the air in Navy's 44-6 rout of William and Mary.

Gustafson said Mira, who suffered a rib injury in the Hurricanes' victory over Kentucky, is "not exactly in top shape but we're hoping he'll be able to play some against Navy."

Judge Lonergan Dies

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Circuit Judge Frank J. Lonergan, 79, a former football star at Notre Dame, died Wednesday.

Judge Lonergan, who had been on the Multnomah County Circuit Court bench since 1945, played end and halfback for Notre Dame from 1901 to 1903. He was born May 27, 1882 in Polo, Ill.

Yanks Now 4-1 Pick In Series

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Bookmakers here reported the new odds favoring New York to win the World Series are 4-1. Before Wednesday's win the Yankees were favored 2½-1.

Odds on Thursday's game are 8½-5 for New York to take its second contest in a row.

The odds against New York winning in 4 straight games are 3½-1.

Cool And Fair For Series Today

NEW YORK (UPI) —The Weather Bureau Wednesday night forecast "fair and cool" weather for the second game of the World Series Thursday.

Unlike Wednesday, when the chance of rain threatened the first game until late in the morning, the Weather Bureau sees no threat of rain Thursday. A high temperature in the 60s is predicted.

Badgers To Start Four New Players

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Coach Milt Bruhn of Wisconsin said Wednesday he will start four players against Indiana Saturday who were not on the first team in the 20-0 loss to Michigan State.

Bruhn will start three sophomores in the backfield in an effort to shake the Badget offense out of a lethargy that has produced only one touchdown in two games.

The coach said sophomores Bill Smith and Jim Nettles will start at the halves and sophomore Jim Purnell will get the nod at fullback. Purnell replaces Neil Fleming, and Smith and Nettles take over for Louis Holland and Merritt Norvell.

Charleston To Lose Baseball Frachise

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Charleston apparently will lose its International League baseball club after less than one full season, the Charleston Daily Mail said Wednesday.

In a dispatch from New York, Sports Editor Dick Hudson said the Marlins "will perform in Montreal or Atlanta next season, barring a change in present plans."

"Official word of a Charleston switch won't come until after the World Series," Hudson wrote. "The league wants to delay such a public report until the territory of Atlanta is cleared with the Southern Association unless a deal is worked out first for a switch to Montreal."

One switch for 1962 already has been made. Jacksonville, Fla., will replace Jersey City.

Sellers Equals Winning Record With 8 In Row

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Johnny Sellers, the nation's leading jockey, equaled an American record Wednesday by extending his winning streak to eight at the Atlantic City race course.

After winning the last three races Tuesday, Sellers brought home the winners of the first five Wednesday afternoon before his string ended.

This duplicated Howard Craig's feat of riding the last six winners at Waterford Park, W. Va., July 2, 1951, and the first two on the next day's program.

Sellers, who rocketed into prominence this year as the regular jockey of Carry Back—the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner—is a 24-year-old native of Los Angeles.

Mantle Says He Can't Play

Mick Unable To Run Or Bat Lefthanded

NEW YORK (AP)—"I know I won't be able to play tomorrow either," said Mickey Mantle, after watching Wednesday's World Series opener from the sideline. "I can't swing left-handed. . . . I can't throw and I can't run."

The New York Yankee slugger sat out the first game, still hobbled by the after effects of minor surgery for an abcess on his right hip.

The Yankees defeated Cincinnati 2-0 on homers by Elston Howard and Bill Skowron.

Roger Maris, the other half of the M&M boys, did nothing to distinguish himself. The man who hit 61 home runs during the regular season went hitless in four times at bat against left-hander Jim O'Toole. He popped up in the first, struck out in the third, grounded out in the fifth and fouled out to the catcher in the seventh.

"I didn't do anything," admitted Maris after the game, "but I feel great. I don't feel any pressure at all. Even a World Series is like a rest after what I went through this season.

Mickey said he wasn't particularly upset about not playing.

"As long as we keep on winning," he said, "I'm satisfied."

Gophers Hold Long Scrimmage

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Minnesota Gophers ran through a lengthy scrimmage Wednesday but coach Murray Warmath didn't point to any outstanding performances.

The four Gopher squads banged away at each other for more than an hour in preparation for Saturday's defense against Oregon.

The Gopher quarters were put through a busy passing session. Warmath said there will be no change in the quarterback post for Saturday's game. He said Stephens will carry the load.

PLYMOUTH

W. Va. To Put New Limit On Trout Catches

Angler May Have 16 In Possession

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A new regulation replacing the old West Virginia season limit on fish catches with a "possession limit" will go into effect next year.

Natural Resources Director Warden M. Lane said Wednesday that beginning in 1962 an angler may legally have only 16 trout or bass in his possession at one time — including what he has in his camp ice box and those he catches on a given day.

The season limit this year is 60 in each category. The daily limit next season will be eight, same as this year. The trout season will open April 28 and run through Dec. 31.

Lane pulled back late Wednesday another new regulation to require that so-called drop lines be attended at all times. A spokesman said that after certain questions were raised that the regulation needed further study and would not go into effect next year as planned.

That regulation mentioned that lines tied to tree branches or poles, stuck in the ground, and allowed to dangle in the water had to be watched at all times. This meant that a fisherman could not set up a string of lines and leave them until later checks.

The question was raised as to whether this would apply to "trout lines" — where a line is across streams, with several lines dropping from it into the water. The proposed regulation did not specifically read that way and due to this and other possible misinterpreations, Lane decided to discard it.

The 1962 frog - gigging season will run from June 16 to July 31, and the new possession limit will apply here with a limit of 20. The nightly limit will be the same as this year, 10.

The new club will have a working agreement with the Cleveland Indians.

Chaney Scores Only Goal In W.M.I. Opener

Forward John Chaney booted home the game's only tally from a scramble in front of the goal posts midway in the second period yesterday as Beall High's Mountaineers opened defense of their Western Maryland Interscholastic Soccer League championship with a 1-0 triumph over the Flintstone High Aggies at Frostburg.

The game, postponed from Tuesday because of rain, was the season's opener for both teams and resulted in a strong defensive battle.

Outstanding players for Coach Ebbie Finzel's Mountaineers were goalie Charles Gray, fullbacks Allan Eisel and Bill Petenbrink and forwards Wayne Wharton and Chaney. Best bets for Flintstone, coached by Orville "Stony" Jackson, were goalie Ron Stafford, fullbacks Dave Kennedy and Don Smith and halfbacks Larry Haines and Don Kinton.

Good, Clean Incision Says Hutch

Post Missed First Home Run By Foot

By HAROLD HARRISON

NEW YORK (AP) — "That's what you would call a good, clean incision."

That was Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson's description of the New York Yankees' 2-0 victory over the Reds Wednesday in the opener of the 1961 World Series.

"There's not a helluva lot you can say about that game," the grim-faced Hutchinson said in the subdued Redleg club house. "You have to give Mr. (Whitey) Ford a lot of credit. He pitched a fine game but our kid (Jim O'Toole) did, too. The only thing he (O'Toole) could have done was shut them out."

The Yankees' first run off O'Toole was Elston Howard's homer in the fourth which barely dropped into the right field seats.

It appeared for a bit that Cincinnati right fielder Wally Post might have made a catch, or might have gotten a glove on the ball.

Post said, however, his stab for the ball was about a foot or two short. The ball dropped into the first row of seats.

"I thought I had a chance for it," Post said, "but it kept drifting away."

Hutchinson merely shook his head and said, "I don't know" when he was asked if he believed the faster Frank Robinson might have made the catch. Robinson usually plays in right field but was shifted to left.

Hutchinson also had some praise for Clete Boyer, the Yankees' third baseman, who made two brilliant stops to rob the Reds of hits.

O'Toole, who had a 19-9 record this year in the regular season, said Howard "didn't get good wood" on his homer. About the one hit by Bill Skowron, O'Toole said, "I just got careless."

On his touch of wildness in the first inning, when he walked Tony Kubek and Skowron, O'Toole commented:

"I was trying too hard to pitch to spots."

O'Toole, always a confindent youngster, showed no signs of being depressed by the defeat. In fact he declared he'd be more relaxed the next time out.

Hutchinson reiterated that Joey Jay would be his starting hurler in Thursday's second game. He said the only possible change in the lineup might be to move first baseman Gordon Coleman up to the fifth spot in the hitting order. Coleman batted seventh Wednesday against the left-handed pitching of Ford.

Ruth Marks Still Under Yank Attack

Ford Near Series Shutout Record

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the year for the attack on the records of the mighty Babe Ruth. But the man who threatened the Babe Wednesday did it with his stout left arm and not with his bat.

Whitey Ford, ace of the New York Yankee pitching staff, spun his third consecutive World Series shutout which adds up to 27 scoreless innings — and in the words of Manager Ralph Houk it "was as nice a one as he has pitched all year."

"I did it with a sinker, a fast ball, a slider, and some cruves," Ford said. "I didn't have a good change of pace."

Ruth's record, back when he pitched for the Boston Red Sox in the 1916 and 1918 World Series, is 29 2-3 scoreless innings. Ford will get a solid chance to beat this when the series moves to Cincinnati this weekend.

Roger Maris, who came within one home run of matching Ruth's 154-game record of 60, but wound up with 61 in the American League's expanded 1961 162-game schedule, went hitless in four at bats. He never hit a ball out of the infield and struck out once.

But Ford, all grins and his blond hair rumpled from sweat, was the center of attraction in the Yankees' dressing room.

"Someone told me about Ruth's pitching record before the game," he said. "But it wasn't on my mind. All I wanted to do was win."

"It's always good to win the first one," said Houk. "Ford's the guy who did it, and of course those homers (by Moose Skowron and Elston Howard) helped.

"And you'd have to say Clete Boyer played a lot of third. That was a heck of a play he made on Dick Gernert in the eighth."

Boyer trapped a terrific smash and, on his knees, threw to first to catch Gernert.

And what did the Yankee manager think of the Cincinnati Reds?

"They must have a good club," he said. "They were in the game all the way. They were facing a good pitcher. Of course we were too, but we hit harder than they did."

Skowron said his homer was made off one of Jim O'Toole's high curves—"And I swung an easy swing."

Clete Boyer said his play on Gernert "was the best I ever made." He also trapped a hard smash in the second and threw out Gene Freese.

Navy Sees Top Foe In Miami

Play In Orange Bowl On Friday

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Navy expects a tough football game when the Middies meet Miami and their talented M-M boys in the Orange Bowl Friday night.

"We thought Penn State was good and Miami beat them handily so I don't know what that makes Miami," Coach Wayne Hardin told a press conference Wednesday. The Middies dropped their opener to Penn State 20-10 and the Hurricanes whipped the Nittany Lions 25-8 last week.

Hardin and chief scout Steve Belichick were especially high on the Hurricanes' M-M boys — quarterback George Mira and end Bill Miller.

Mira, a 5-11 and 176 pounds, is fourth in the nation in total offense (394 yards), according to the latest collegiate statistics.

Miller has taken 12 passes for 172 yards and one touchdown.

Hardin said he didn't plan any drastic overhaul of Navy's secondary to cope with the airborne threat of the M-M boys.

Miami coach Andy Gustafson told the press conference in a telephone interview that he also expects a lot of passing from the Middies and their junior quarterback Ron Klemick, who clicked for two touchdowns through the air in Navy's 44-6 rout of William and Mary.

Gustafson said Mira, who suffered a rib injury in the Hurricanes' victory over Kentucky, is "not exactly in top shape but we're hoping he'll be able to play some against Navy."

Charleston To Lose Baseball Frachise

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Charleston apparently will lose its International League baseball club after less than one full season, the Charleston Daily Mail said Wednesday.

In a dispatch from New York, Sports Editor Dick Hudson said the Marlins "will perform in Montreal or Atlanta next season, barring a change in present plans."

"Official word of a Charleston switch won't come until after the World Series," Hudson wrote. "The league wants to delay such a public report until the territory of Atlanta is cleared with the Southern Association unless a deal is worked out first for a switch to Montreal."

One switch for 1962 already has been made. Jacksonville, Fla., will replace Jersey City.

Sellers Equals Winning Record With 8 In Row

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Johnny Sellers, the nation's leading jockey, equaled an American record Wednesday by extending his winning streak to eight at the Atlantic City race course.

After winning the last three races Tuesday, Sellers brought home the winners of the first five Wednesday afternoon before his string ended.

This duplicated Howard Craig's feat of riding the last six winners at Waterford Park, W. Va., July 2, 1951, and the first two on the next day's program.

Sellers, who rocketed into prominence this year as the regular jockey of Carry Back—the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner—is a 24-year-old native of Los Angeles.

Mantle Says He Can't Play

Mick Unable To Run Or Bat Lefthanded

NEW YORK (AP)—"I know I won't be able to play tomorrow either," said Mickey Mantle, after watching Wednesday's World Series opener from the sideline. "I can't swing left-handed. . . . I can't throw and I can't run."

The New York Yankee slugger sat out the first game, still hobbled by the after effects of minor surgery for an abcess on his right hip.

The Yankees defeated Cincinnati 2-0 on homers by Elston Howard and Bill Skowron.

Roger Maris, the other half of the M&M boys, did nothing to distinguish himself. The man who hit 61 home runs during the regular season went hitless in four times at bat against left-hander Jim O'Toole. He popped up in the first, struck out in the third, grounded out in the fifth and fouled out to the catcher in the seventh.

"I didn't do anything," admitted Maris after the game, "but I feel great. I don't feel any pressure at all. Even a World Series is like a rest after what I went through this season.

Mickey said he wasn't particularly upset about not playing.

"As long as we keep on winning," he said, "I'm satisfied."

Gophers Hold Long Scrimmage

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Minnesota Gophers ran through a lengthy scrimmage Wednesday but coach Murray Warmath didn't point to any outstanding performances.

The four Gopher squads banged away at each other for more than an hour in preparation for Saturday's defense against Oregon.

The Gopher quarters were put through a busy passing session. Warmath said there will be no change in the quarterback post for Saturday's game. He said Stephens will carry the load.

Market Posts Substantial Gain As Rails Show Way

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rail issues led the stock market to a hefty gain on stepped up trading Wednesday.

Despite the distraction posed by the World Series opener traders kept their minds on business enough to push turnover 700,000 shares above the prior session to 3,380,000 shares.

The carriers pushed through their August high-point early in the session and were unstoppable thereafter, closing at 149.85 in the Dow-Jones averages for a gain of 5.40 or 3¾ per cent. In the Standard & Poor's index they rose 1.21 to a new high for the year.

A total of 13 of the 20 rails in the D-J were up at least a point and Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago & North Western, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific and Southern were ahead 2 or more.

In all, a total of 1,281 issues were traded — 31 more than the prior session and the most since Aug. 8. Of these, 752 advanced, 55 to new highs, and 310 declined, 25 to new lows.

Dow-Jones industrials closed at 703.31 for again of 4.65 and Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.45 indicating that around $3 billion was annexed to paper volues.

Market Posts Substantial Gain As Rails Show Way

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rail issues led the stock market to a hefty gain on stepped up trading Wednesday.

Despite the distraction posed by the World Series opener traders kept their minds on business enough to push turnover 700,000 shares above the prior session to 3,380,000 shares.

The carriers pushed through their August high-point early in the session and were unstoppable thereafter, closing at 149.85 in the Dow-Jones averages for a gain of 5.40 or 3¾ per cent. In the Standard & Poor's index they rose 1.21 to a new high for the year.

A total of 13 of the 20 rails in the D-J were up at least a point and Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago & North Western, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific and Southern were ahead 2 or more.

In all, a total of 1,281 issues were traded — 31 more than the prior session and the most since Aug. 8. Of these, 752 advanced, 55 to new highs, and 310 declined, 25 to new lows.

Dow-Jones industrials closed at 703.31 for again of 4.65 and Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.45 indicating that around $3 billion was annexed to paper volues.

Cards of Thanks

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Mary Glantzer, who died 9 years ago today, October 5, 1952. Nine years have passed since the day, When one we loved was called away. 'Tis strange, yet true, I wonder why, The good are always first to die. One of the best, that God could lend, A loving mother and faithful friend. A beautiful memory left behind. In silence she suffered, In patience she bore, Til God called her home, To suffer no more

Sadly missed by HUSBAND, DAUGHTERS & SON

Cards of Thanks

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Mary Giantzer, who died 6 years ago today, October 5, 1952.
Nine years have passed since the day,
When one we loved was called away.
Tis strange, yet true, I wonder why,
The good are always first to die.
One of the best, that God could lend,
A loving monther and faithful friend,
A beautiful memory left behind.
In silence she suffered,
In patience she bore,
Til God called her home,
To suffer no more
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, DAUGHTERS & SON

City Collects One Fourth Of Year's Tax Levy

Slightly more than a fourth of Cumberland's 1961-1962 tax levy has been collected.

Receipts were a light $21,000 yesterday but brought the total to some $337,000, according to Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder.

Collections to date, City Comptroller Arthur B. Gibson calculated, amount to 26.14 per cent of the $1,289,000 tax levy.

The money is coming in a bit faster than last year, he said, since only $289,695.95 had been collected at the close of business last October 4.

W.Va. School Head Takes Issue With Gov. Barron

JACKSON'S MILL, W. Va. (UPI)—State School Supt. Rex M. Smith took issue Tuesday with a contention by Gov. W. W. Barron that West Virginia schools turn out many students who "can't do anything."

And Smith also said he did not go along with a remark by the governor that the state's school system has shown no marked improvement over the past 30 years.

"A more careful look at programs now being conducted would show definite improvements in methods used 10 and 20 years ago," Smith contended.

Barron, in a speech read Tuesday night at a meeting here sponsored by the North Central Association and the State Education Department to discuss use of television in schools, was critical of the present school methods and also questioned the advisibility of using educational TV in West Virginia schools.

The governor said more money is needed for schools but it should be spent on new methods and not immediately on something like TV in classrooms which he characterized as "icing for an old cake."

At Wednesday's session of the conference here however, it was disclosed that experiments in educational-TV already are under way in West Virginia — in Hardy and Hancock Counties.

Richard Hawes, Hardy County school superintendent, said TV courses in music, art, science and literature were started this week in certain schools in that area. He said the TV-teaching ultimately would reach about 8,000 grade school children and that TV sets would be provided for all grade schools with four or more rooms.

Hancock County officials reported that they started this week a TV training program for school teachers. The programs are telecast by a Pittsburgh educational TV station. Hardy County's school courses come from a Richmond, Va., station.

Gregory Van Camp, coordinator of educational broadcasting for West Virginia University, also disclosed plans for a new communications art center at WVU. He said construction is expected to begin next spring, with the work requiring about a year and a half.

Van Camp said educational films would be produced at the center for distribution to any educational group. And he said other colleges also would be permitted to use the center to produce their own films.

Hawes said the TV programs beamed to Hardy County schools would be "a great help" because of a shortage of teachers, particularly in the fields of arts and sciences. Hawes said students would be unable to get this kind of teaching, otherwise.

Accelerator Causes Four Car Crash

A stuck accelerator was blamed yesterday for an accident which caused damage to four automobiles here.

The multiple crash occurred at 2:37 p. m. on Salem Street as Wilmer Austin Null, Ellerslie, a retired railroader, began to pull his car out of the street where it had been parked.

Officer Clarence Valentine, who investigated for city police, said the accelerator stuck as Mr. Null was pulling out, and that the car caught the rear of the parked automobile of Lynn Walker, 229 Pear Street.

He said the Walker car then hit the parked car of William C. Holbrook, 408 Washington Street, while the Null vehicle ran across the street to hit a parked car owned by Jacob D. Taylor, 904 Glenn Street.

Water Line Filled For Pressure Test

Pressure tests on a section of water line being relocated in the Long Hill section began yesterday.

Crews of the Orrie Sensabaugh contracting firm began filling the 2,200 feet of line with water yesterday, and added chlorine to sterilize the line, which must undergo pressure of 100 pounds per square inch 24 hours.

Suit Charges Encroachment

Seven persons who jointly own a 350-acre tract near Barton known as "Flowery Meads," have filed suit in Allegany County Circuit Court contending that coal mining operations near their property encroached underground onto their land.

Charles F. Eckhart and Harry E. Eckhart, both of Eckhart; Jonathan J. Eckhart, Andrew R. Shaw and Lyda P. Shaw, all of LaVale; William C. McClellan and Virginia S. McClellan, both of Sewickley, Pa., brought the $50,000 damage suit against John Ayres, Arthur P. Hoffa and John Ayres Sr., all of Barton.

The declaration pointed out that Mr. Hoffa was engaged in deep mining, strip mining, shipping and retailing of coal. Some of his operations were adjacent to land owned by the plaintiffs, the suit points out.

In asking for damages, the plaintiffs say that the desirability of their tract has been depreciated and valuable estate of coal has been lost as a result of the alleged underground encroachment.

Seek To Close Cresaptown Alley

Kenneth C. Relph and Martha C. Relph, his wife, of Cresaptown, have filed a petition with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for the closing of an unnamed alley in Section "A" of the Cellulose City Addition in Cresaptown.

The Relphs published their legal notice of intention on September 7. The alley is 10 feet wide and extends some 200 feet from Second and Third Avenue in Cresaptown, between Main Street and Jeanette Street. The alley is overgrown with debris and is unusable. The Relphs propose that the alley revert to the abutting property owners.

3 County Residents Get Dwelling Permits

Traffic Increases On U.S. Route 40

Summertime traffic on U. S. Route 40, one of this state's primary vacation roads, showed sharp increases this year.

U. S. Route 40 west toward Western Maryland's mountain regions showed a 7.2 per cent boost in traffic, the State Roads Commission reports.

The SRC said state-wide traffic in August was up 5.4 per cent from last year and that boosts on some major highways ranged higher than 15 per cent.

County Accepts Road Right-Of-Way

Richard Allen House and Shirley E. House, his wife, deeded the right-of-way to the county.

The commissioners Tuesday also received a letter of thanks from Gordon L. Beach, secretary of the Rawlings Heights Home Owners Association, for road work done in that community. He requested that tarring and/or blacktopping be considered in next year's budget.

City Collects One Fourth Of Year's Tax Levy

Slightly more than a fourth of Cumberland's 1961-1962 tax levy has been collected.

Receipts were a light $21,000 yesterday but brought the total to some $337,000, according to Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder.

Collections to date, City Comptroller Arthur B. Gibson calculated, amount to 26.14 per cent of the $1,289,000 tax levy.

The money is coming in a bit faster than last year, he said, since only $289,695.95 had been collected at the close of business last October 4.

W.Va. School Head Takes Issue With Gov. Barron

JACKSON'S MILL, W. Va. (UPI)—State School Supt. Rex M. Smith took issue Tuesday with a contention by Gov. W. W. Barron that West Virginia schools turn out many students who "can't do anything."

And Smith also said he did not go along with a remark by the governor that the state's school system has shown no marked improvement over the past 30 years.

"A more careful look at programs now being conducted would show definite improvein methods used 10 and 20 years ments and even radical changes ago," Smith contended.

Barron, in a speech read Tuesday night at a meeting here sponsored by the North Central Association and the State Education Department to discuss use of television in schools, was critical of the present school methods and also questioned the advisibility of using educational TV in West Virginia schools.

The governor said more money is needed for schools but it should be spent on new methods and not immediately on something like TV in classrooms which he characterized as "icing for an old cake."

At Wednesday's session of the conference here however, it was disclosed that experiments in educational-TV already are under way in West Virginia — in Hardy and Hancock Counties.

Richard Hawes, Hardy County school superintendent, said TV courses in music, art, science and literature were started this week in certain schools in that area. He said the TV-teaching ultimately would reach about 8,000 grade school children and that TV sets would be provided for all grade schools with four or more rooms.

Hancock County officials reported that they started this week a TV training program for school teachers. The programs are telecast by a Pittsburgh educational TV station. Hardy County's school courses come from a Richmond, Va., station.

Gregory Van Camp, coordinator of educational broadcasting for West Virginia University, also disclosed plans for a new communications art center at WVU. He said construction is expected to begin next spring, with the work requiring about a year and a half.

Van Camp said educational films would be produced at the center for distribution to any educational group. And he said other colleges also would be permitted to use the center to produce their own films.

Hawes said the TV programs beamed to Hardy County schools would be "a great help" because of a shortage of teachers, particularly in the fields of arts and sciences. Hawes said students would be unable to get this kind of teaching, otherwise.

Accelerator Causes Four Car Crash

A stuck accelerator was blamed yesterday for an accident which caused damage to four automobiles here.

The multiple crash occurred at 2:37 p. m. on Salem Street as Wilmer Austin Null, Ellerslie, a retired railroader, began to pull his car out of the street where it had been parked.

Officer Clarence Valentine, who investigated for city police, said the accelerator stuck as Mr. Null was pulling out, and that the car caught the rear of the parked automobile of Lynn Walker, 229 Pear Street.

He said the Walker car then hit the parked car of William C. Holbrook, 408 Washington Street, while the Null vehicle ran across the street to hit a parked car owned by Jacob D. Taylor, 904 Glenn Street.

Suit Charges Encroachment

Seven persons who jointly own a 350-acre tract near Barton known as "Flowery Meads," have filed suit in Allegany County Circuit Court contending that coal mining operations near their property encroached underground onto their land.

Charles F. Eckhart and Harry E. Eckhart, both of Eckhart; Jonathan J. Eckhart, Andrew B. Shaw and Lyda P. Shaw, all of LaVale; William C. McClellan and Virginia S. McClellan, both of Sewickley, Pa., brought the $50,000 damage suit against John Ayres, Arthur P. Hoffa and John Ayres Sr., all of Barton.

The declaration pointed out that Mr. Hoffa was engaged in deep mining, strip mining, shipping and retailing of coal. Some of his operations were adjacent to land owned by the plaintiffs, the suit points out.

In asking for damages, the plaintiffs say that the desirability of their tract has been depreciated and valuable estate of coal has been lost as a result of the alleged underground encroachment.

Seek To Close Cresaptown Alley

Kenneth C. Relph and Martha C. Relph, his wife, of Cresaptown, have filed a petition with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for the closing of an unnamed alley in Section "A" of the Cellulose City Addition in Cresaptown.

The Relphs published their legal notice of intention on September 7. The alley is 10 feet wide and extends some 200 feet from Second and Third Avenue in Cresaptown, between Main Street and Jeanette Street. The alley is overgrown with debris and is unusable. The Relphs propose that the alley revert to the abutting property owners.

Council Briefed On Mobile Home Court Decision

Ordinance Planned To Regulate Units

The Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission last night briefed the Mayor and Council on the deliberations which led to its recommendation that a 1½ acre tract on Homestead Avenue be designated as a mobile homes court area.

There was a meeting of minds, during the conference, that the City of Cumberland should adopt an ordinance to regulate the operation of mobile home courts and similar installations.

City officials requested the meeting Monday after delaying action, on the commission's recommendation.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech, in opening the meeting, said the conference was requested to allow the commission to explain to city officials its reasons for granting the permit.

Albert S. Paye, commission chairman, said the unit began its deliberations in mid-July after Roy A. Rodenhauser applied for a permit. He said the commission viewed the land, told the applican the tract was too small for a mobile homes court and suggested that he try to sell it for commercial purposes.

Is Commercial Zone

The site is zoned for commercial use and is located on an unopened street bounded by Fourth Street, Memorial Avenue Extended and Quebec Avenue.

Mr. Paye said Mr. Rodenhauser reported he had been unable to sell the land but that people next to him had offered to option additional land.

He said Mr. Rodenhauser told the commission he would sell the land for a reasonable price if a commercial buyer could be found.

Efforts were made, Mr. Paye said, to interest a commercial venture in the site which the city's planner termed one of the city's few remaining desirable commercial sites.

James Alfred Avirett, member, said the commission's chief objection to the trailer court was that the land was "just too good" for such a use, but that the mobile homes court will, in a sense, preserve the site for a future commercial use. He added it would be a "magnificent" site for a small industry.

Needed At Once

In response to a query by city officials on the possibility of adopting regulations for the court, City Attorney William R. Carscaden said rules could be set up by ordinance but that it should be done right away.

The city has had, for number of years, an ordinance which prohibited trailer courts except in areas designated by the Planning and Zoning Commission, and last June, the law was amended by adding the words "mobile homes."

Mr. Carscaden said the commission has recommended the site, that he did not see how the Mayor and Council has any authority in the matter, and that the city engineer must grant the permit.

It was pointed out that the commission's recommendation would allow the development of the mobile homes court area only under the plan proposed by Mr. Rodenhauser.

This calls for the location of 19 mobile home spaces, each on a 35 by 80-foot lot, on the 1½-acre site.

Must Follow Plan

No deviation from the plan should be allowed, the commission said.

It was pointed out that the location of the mobile homes court has been forced on the city for lack of a modern zoning ordinance.

Modern codes, it was pointed out, allow only specific uses in certin areas. For example, only industries are allowed in industrial areas, while the city's outmoded code allows anything in such an area.

A modern zoning ordinance, suited to the needs of the city, is one of the things Cumberland will get from its planning program which is expected to begin here this month.

The commission accepted a recommendation by Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder that a letter of explanation accompany future recommendations.

The commission also pointed out that the Mayor and Council will always be welcomed at meetings.

Plans were made to have memorandums sent to the Mayor and Council for any meeting when important matters are to be discussed.

State Board Allows Change On Dorm Bids

Second Low Bidder Awarded Contract

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The Board of Public Works made an exception to state policy Wednesday so the University of Maryland could have a new dormitory next fall.

After a lengthy discussion, the board agreed to let Merando, Inc. withdraw from the contract it had been awarded for $1,904,200 to construct Cumberland Hall and a dining room and lounge.

The contract was then awarded to the second low bidder, the George Hyman Construction Co., at a cost $114,000 higher to the state.

Under normal procedures, Merando, which claimed it had made a mistake in its bid, would have to forfeit the $96,289 bond it posted with the state. But University of Maryland officials urged the board to accept the second low offer so the matter would not be tied up in a court suit. They said the dormitory was urgently needed for next September.

Albert Backhus, director of public improvements, opposed letting Merando out of the contract without forfeiture of bond. He said the firm had made an "honest mistake" in the bid but that the practice was dangerous.

Gov. Tawes, who heads the Public Works Board, agreed it could place the state in a "delicate position" on the matter of awarding contracts but added: "This is being done solely on the basis of the time element . . . it is not setting a precedent."

In other action at Wednesday's meeting, the Public Works Board:

1. Approved a new mileage scale for state employes, granting them a flat allowance of 8 cents a mile.

2. Approved establishment of a new position in the Mental Hygiene Department of chief of community services for the mentally retarded with a salary scale of $7,800 to $9,750 a year as recommended by the State Standard Salary Board. The new official will be in charge of coordinating a program of day care centers authorized by the 1961 legislature.

3. Approved an emergency pay increase for the chief fire investigator in the State Insurance Department. The pay scale was boosted from $5,970-$7,464 a year to new levels of $6,660-$8,324.

Garrett County Gas Fields Are Cited In State Report

Exploitation, Conservation Compared

Wasteful exploitation and sound conservation development of natural gas fields in Garrett County—the only area in the state where gas is produced—are compared in the 16th annual report of the Maryland Board of Natural Resources.

The report indicates the value of the production of the Mountain Lake Park field from 49 producing wells to June 30, 1959 was $2,628,159, whereas that of 13 producing wells in the Accident field was $3,940,752.

The progressive decline of the Mountain Lake Park gas field is shown in the production during the fiscal years 1956-1959 as follows:

1956 — 1,337,331,000 cubic feet; 1957 — 698,125,000 cubic feet; 1958 — 500,162,000 cubic feet and 1959 — 381,889,000 cubic feet.

The results of the steady and orderly development of the Accident gas field under controlled drilling and well spacing and controlled seasonal rate of production continue to be reflected in the annual production during 1956-1959 as follows:

1956 — 2,139,952,00 cubic feet; 1957 — 4,233,062,000 cubic feet; 1958 — 3,995,486,000 cubic feet and 1959 — 4,136,861,000 cubic feet.

22 Still Drilling

The report covering fiscal year July 1, 1958 to June 30, 1959 points out that no permits to drill wells in Mountain Lake Park gas field were applied for and no new producing wells were brought in. Of the 49 producing wells that had been brought in, none were abandoned during the fiscal year and 22 were still producing at the end of that year.

Four permits to drill wells in the Accident gas field were issued and three producing wells were completed. At the close of the year 13 wells were in production in the field.

The first successful gas well was drilled in the Mountain Lake Park area and came into production in October 1949. At that time there were no laws on spacing gas wells and new wells were drilled near producing wells in the hope of sufficient gas to yield a profit to all producers. In the absence of controls, more than 100 wells were drilled but only 49 wells were productive, the report said.

Spacing Now Required

The yield from these 49 wells subsequently declined, many were abandoned and at the end of the year covered by the annual report only 22 wells were producing.

In 1953 the General Assembly passed an act providing for the orderly spacing of gas wells constructed thereafter. This act, which came too late to correct the damage done to the Mountain Lake Park field, was repealed in 1954 and a new act on gas well spacing was passed in 1956.

In the meantime the first well in the Accident field came into production in the last quarter of 1953. Prior to the 1956 act, producers in the Accident field had agreed among themselves to certain voluntary controls on their own operations and consequently the Accident field has developed in an orderly manner, the report points out.

Posts and sills of the buildings which house private aircraft have been rotting for some years, allowing the buildings to sag.

Council Briefed On Mobile Home Court Decision

Ordinance Planned To Regulate Units

The Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission last night briefed the Mayor and Council on the deliberations which led to its recommendation that a 1½ acre tract on Homestead Avenue be designated as a mobile homes court area.

There was a meeting of minds, during the conference, that the City of Cumberland should adopt an ordinance to regulate the operation of mobile home courts and similar installations.

City officials requested the meeting Monday after delaying action, on the commission's recommendation.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech, in opening the meeting, said the conference was requested to allow the commission to explain to city officials its reasons for granting the permit.

Albert S. Paye, commission chairman, said the unit began its deliberations in mid-July after Roy A. Rodenhauser applied for a permit. He said the commission viewed the land, told the applican the tract was too small for a mobile homes court and suggested that he try to sell it for commercial purposes.

Is Commercial Zone

The site is zoned for commercial use and is located on an unopened street bounded by Fourth Street, Memorial Avenue Extended and Quebec Avenue.

Mr. Paye said Mr. Rodenhauser reported he had been unable to sell the land but that people next to him had offered to option additional land.

He said Mr. Rodenhauser told the commission he would sell the land for a reasonable price if a commercial buyer could be found.

Efforts were made, Mr. Paye said, to interest a commercial venture in the site which the city's planner termed one of the city's few remaining desirable commercial sites.

James Alfred Avirett, member, said the commission's chief objection to the trailer court was that the land was "just too good" for such a use, but that the mobile homes court will, in a sense, preserve the site for a future commercial use. He added it would be a "magnificent" site for a small industry.

Needed At Once

In response to a query by city officials on the possibility of adopting regulations for the court, City Attorney William R. Carscaden said rules could be set up by ordinance but that it should be done right away.

The city has had, for number of years, an ordinance which prohibited trailer courts except in areas designated by the Planning and Zoning Commission, and last June, the law was amended by adding the words "mobile homes."

Mr. Carscaden said the commission has recommended the site, that he did not see how the Mayor and Council has any authority in the matter, and that the city engineer must grant the permit.

It was pointed out that the commission's recommendation would allow the development of the mobile homes court area only under the plan proposed by Mr. Rodenhauser.

This calls for the location of 19 mobile home spaces, each on a 35 by 80-foot lot, on the 1½-acre site.

Must Follow Plan

No deviation from the plan should be allowed, the commission said.

It was pointed out that the location of the mobile homes court has been forced on the city for lack of a modern zoning ordinance.

Garrett County Gas Fields Are Cited In State Report

Exploitation, Conservation Compared

Wasteful exploitation and sound conservation development of natural gas fields in Garrett County—the only area in the state where gas is produced—are compared in the 16th annual report of the Maryland Board of Natural Resources.

The report indicates the value of the production of the Mountain Lake Park field from 49 producing wells to June 30, 1959 was $2,628,159, whereas that of 13 producing wells in the Accident field was $3,940,752.

The progressive decline of the Mountain Lake Park gas field is shown in the production during the fiscal years 1956-1959 as follows:

1956 — 1,337,331,000 cubic feet; 1957 — 698,125,000 cubic feet; 1958 — 500,162,000 cubic feet and 1959 — 381,889,000 cubic feet.

The results of the steady and orderly development of the Accident gas field under controlled drilling and well spacing and controlled seasonal rate of production continue to be reflected in the annual production during 1956-1959 as follows:

1956 — 2,139,952,00 cubic feet; 1957 — 4,233,062,000 cubic feet; 1958 — 3,995,486,000 cubic feet and 1959 — 4,136,861,000 cubic feet.

22 Still Drilling

The report covering fiscal year July 1, 1958 to June 30, 1959 points out that no permits to drill wells in Mountain Lake Park gas field were applied for and no new producing wells were brought in. Of the 49 producing wells that had been brought in, none were abandoned during the fiscal year and 22 were still producing at the end of that year.

Four permits to drill wells in the Accident gas field were issued and three producing wells were completed. At the close of the year 13 wells were in production in the field.

The first successful gas well was drilled in the Mountain Lake Park area and came into production in October 1949. At that time there were no laws on spacing gas wells and new wells were drilled near producing wells in the hope of sufficient gas to yield a profit to all producers. In the absence of controls, more than 100 wells were drilled but only 49 wells were productive, the report said.

Spacing Now Required

The yield from these 49 wells subsequently declined, many were abandoned and at the end of the year covered by the annual report only 22 wells were producing.

In 1953 the General Assembly passed an act providing for the orderly spacing of gas wells constructed thereafter. This act, which came too late to correct the damage done to the Mountain Lake Park field, was repealed in 1954 and a new act on gas well spacing was passed in 1956.

In the meantime the first well in the Accident field came into production in the last quarter of 1953. Prior to the 1956 act, producers in the Accident field had agreed among themselves to certain voluntary controls on their own operations and consequently the Accident field has developed in an orderly manner, the report points out.

He said three of the 15 hangars have been rehabilitated by the maintenance crew headed by Roy Maphis, foreman, and that the work is being done as time can be spared from nomal tasks.

Posts and sills of the buildings which house private aircraft have been rotting for some years, allowing the buildings to sag.

When trouble is found, workers are removing damaged portions of the posts and sills, replacing them with concrete sills and supports.

Mayor Keech, who made the inspection in the company of City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, said he found the airport in good shape after last weekend's air show.
